BREAKING through

The theme of Regulus 1998 represents how we, as a class, are breaking through and entering a world beyond Newton South. Our four years in high school have served as a transition from childhood to adulthood, and we are now ready to break out and face what lies ahead. We, as a school, are breaking in a new principal, a new schedule, and many new renovations. As a united group, we must come together and adjust to the various changes at Newton South. Each class must break through into the future and leave new traditions and memories behind. This theme has great meaning to the senior class and to the school as a whole. We hope that you value the significance of Regulus '98 as much as we do. As we prepare to break through the boundary to the next stages of our lives, we look back and acknowledge that we have only just begun.

The life on the south side of this wonderful suburb of Newton cannot be classified with one word. One thing that we all have in common is having to work hard. South provides a challenging academic environment, and we all have felt the pressures of cramming for a test the night before or doing a paper the day before it's due. When it comes to outside activities, everyone has his or her own unique interests. Some students, like senior Billy Abromowitz, find pleasure in simplicity: "I work. I eat. I sleep. That's about it." Others find enjoyment in going to movies, cheering on the Lions' athletic teams, or loitering at Lil' Peach on the weekends. South students can take part in a plethora of different school affiliated activities, such as student government, Denebola, Lion's Roar, or clubs ranging from ping pong to chess. Some spend their time by working at such distinguished institutions as MVP Sports or Starbucks coffee. With so many choices available, students have made Newton South the diverse place it is proud to be. And what we try to remember through all of our loads of work and activities is that high school is supposed to be fun, and ultimately we all choose to follow paths that make us happy.

BREAKING up the day

Student Life

Back to School

The first day of school is usually one of the most dreaded days of the year. Compared to lazy days of summer filled with partying at night and sleeping late in the morning, getting up at 6:30 and going to school doesn't sound especially thrilling. However, there is always a little (perhaps very little) part of us that is excited to see our friends, greet former teachers, and simply to be a year older. The freshmen are happy to be in a new school with plenty of gorgeous upperclassmen; the sophomores are somewhat excited for a fairly unstressful year; the juniors can't wait to plow through the piles of homework that lie ahead; and the seniors, although facing application deadlines and standardized tests, are busy serving as leaders and role models for the school. As we walk down the halls and say "hi" to everyone we missed over the summer, we tend to ignore the work ahead of us and enjoy our first day back. Although we often claim to fear the first day of school, truthfully we all enjoy it in some way because there is still a bit of intrigue inside Newton South, and we never really know what the year will bring.

Orange and Blue

Members of a tribe bind together and wear their colors on a mask or paint their bodies. As suburban students we, too, bind together. We do so not to fight for territory or for a hunt, but to kindle our instinct to show spirit for what is consuming so much of our life at the moment.

Newton South students pledge their faith by wearing orange and blue. In the shadow of these two colors, we represent our school at sports events, decorate our cars for the motorcade and our bodies for Orange and Blue day.

Spirit extends beyond orange and blue. Throughout the year, Newton South sports team members wear ridiculous assortments of clothing to further enthusiasm. From Pippi Longstocking lookalikes to togas and cross-dressing, they do not hesitate to show spirit in the most outrageous ways. As each class carries on the tradition, and the colors remain the same, the spirit of the LIONS will never die.

Weekends

Every Monday morning, the question arises, "What are we going to do next weekend?" The weekdays go by very slowly, even more so this year with the additon of 70 minute blocks. By the time D Block arrives on Friday, every possible option for the weekend has been explored countless times. When the bell rings, students breathe a collective sigh of relief, for the weekend has arrived.

Since Newton is not exactly filled with exciting things to do, Friday and Saturday nights often end up the same way: driving around, going to the movies, or staying home to get ahead on schoolwork. Sometimes there will be an exciting event at school, such as a dance, play, or musical production. Many upperclassmen find themselves at Lil' Peach or Dunkin' Donuts where they are guaranteed to meet up with at least a couple of their South classmates. While upperclassmen drive up and down Needham Street, underclassmen can be found walking and taking cabs, hoping to find a place of their own.

Whether hanging around at parties, going out to eat, seeing the latest movie or finding something original and exciting to do, the weekends are a time to come together with your friends and bond with your classmates. Weekends are a time to relax and regain strength for the upcoming week.

Fashion Trends

As you walk down the hallways of Newton South, you will find yourself among a sea of fleece jackets, warm-up pants, J Crew sweaters, khaki pants, and puffy vests. NSHS is basically known for being preppy and trend-following, but you can also find a lot of personal, funky styles. Sometimes you can spot dyed hair, birthday tiaras, shiny boots or "orange and blue" spirit.

Usually during the winter everyone is bundled in knit gloves, wool sweaters, hiking boots, and anything fleece. However, when the weather becomes warmer, the styles change to flowery skirts, khaki shorts, tight tank-tops, and Addidas sneakers. Baseball caps are worn (mostly by guys) everywhere, and throughout the whole year. Brine key chains are always swinging and high, black boots are a constant among many girls. Basically, NSHS is undaring in the fashion department, but there are always outfits that will catch your eye.

Parking Lot

The parking lot is the one place in school besides the cafeteria where a student can go and meet up with people. Whether you are looking for someone to drive you on your daily pilgrimage to Needham Street, or you just want to get some fresh air while doing homework, the parking lot is the place to be. Students of all grades and types gather in the parking lots to convene, talk, and decide where to go for lunch. Although there are two distinctly designated areas for junior and senior parking, kids of all ages can be found wandering through either lot.

On warm and sunny days, people can always be found in the parking lots relaxing, eating, hackysacking or playing football. During free blocks and after school are popular times to be socializing in the lots, even on a snowy winter day. If you're hungry, bored or lonely in the middle of the school day, your best bet is to venture out to the parking lot where you are sure to find a crowd of kids in the same situation. The lots provide a spacious area for all students to come together and socialize during free moments.

Free Blocks

There were vicious rumors last year that because of a new schedule, free blocks were no longer going to be part of the South Experience. We all waited in anticipation and were pleasantly surprised that with the new schedule came the now-favorite part of many Southies' day: the 70 minute free block.

Upperclassmen (or, those blessed with cars) no longer have to make difficult decisions like which bagel place to go to; you can make it to Ultimate, Einstein's and Finagle all in one 70 minute block. You can finally make everyone in your group happy when you go to Mighty's, Papa's, and the Peach in one block and still make it back in plenty of time for class. If you have a double or triple free, you can even make it across state lines.

One things remains the same — frosh are still (supposedly) stuck in study hall. In reality, freshmen guys can now afford to take a more leisurely walk through the woods to Fortune Panda or the Atrium, while freshmen girls have more time to bat their eyelashes and be surrounded by a mob of upper classmen guys eager to take them out. You could even say that 70 minutes without class opens up a whole new world of possibilities.

Dances

By the psychedelic glow of the Veryfine machine, under the watchful eye of Ms. Bryant, freshmen uncomfortably stood in clumps watching the seniors groove it in the middle of the empty cafe. Although school dances this year were infrequent and never became the biggest social scene of Saturday night, the spirited bunch in attendance always had a great time. "I wish that school dances were more successful," said senior Laura Walton. Senior Shaina Forbush agreed, "I always had the best time dancing with all my friends, but I wish that more people had come."

Of course no dance is complete without Denise Griffiths' boa and Solonje Burnett's Adidas shorts. But this year there was more reason to attend than supporting the senior class or checking out the senior girls; all the music was provided by talented South students. The Halloween bash was no exception. Jonah Berman spinned the jams and Phatso Funk, a hot South band, made their debut appearance. Everyone came decked out in costume. Princesses Amy Sanchez and Emily Treat won the ever-popular costume contest and unrivaled Spice Girls Rachel Abramovitz, Stephanie Lasker, Jade McCarthy, Abbe Perlman and Emily Snider worked it on the dance floor.

The teacher chaperones, policeman in the parking lot, and the threat of a breathalyzer at the door made some shy away. But those wimps who would not miss a night of partying for anything or those underclassmen too shy to participate really missed out. So hit it at school dances — it beats driving around all night!

Siblings

When times are tough, family can carry you along.

Newton has been blessed with a myriad of sibling combinations ranging from the inseparable to the unrecognizable. It is divine that their parents decided to have children so close in age because of things like shared free-blocks, clothes, gossip, etc. The older siblings, although undoubtedly mature and intelligent, now have the burden of watching out for two instead of one and that can be a hassle. As senior Andrew Berenberg points out, "I enjoy having my sister in school with me, but I spend an exorbitant amount of time watching out for her." See how Newton South students care.

For the younger ones, the benefits can be innumerable with an occasional drawback. Free-blocks can be a drag for underclassmen and an older sibling can easily end that with a surprise offer of free transportation to Papa Gino's. Weekends, as bleak as they appear for young South-ites, prove salvageable with permission from a sibling to attend upperclassman events. On the down-side, older siblings have this strange habit of disclosing dates of birthdays in attempt to cause havoc for a younger one's day, but that is just a rumor.

All in all, most are grateful for an in-school sibling. Those off-white hallways can be imposing at times, and it always helps to have upperclassmen guidance. Rarely, can one complain about a sibling, but Molly Goodson disagreed, "My brother doesn't even know I exist." I wonder how she got that inane idea in her head. Besides the few deterrents, Newton South embraces its younger siblings.

Bedrooms

Rooms are an integral part of students' lives here at Newton South. Each room is individual and unique. Whether a room is purple, flowered or anything in between they all serve the same purpose. Rooms are expressions of the people living in them. They hold memories, posters, old books, and whatever else their inhabitants can find. High school kids use their rooms as an escape from the pressures of parents, school, and sports. They are a method of relieving stress. Many rooms are equipped with the highest technology, everything from TV's and VCR's to phone lines. Junior Marisa Keller says, "I love my room! It is a place for me to go and relax without any unwanted interruptions from the outside world." All of this makes the punishment, "Go to your room!!" not seem so bad after all.

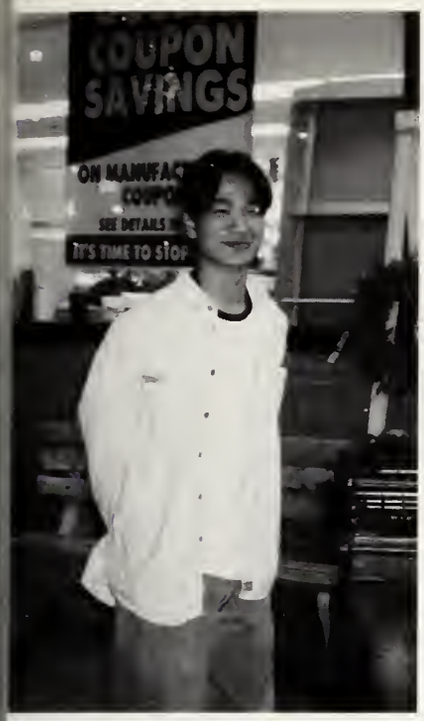
Jobs



CVS (double coupon savings).

Life just seems to be getting more and more expensive as we grow older. Some of us get our licenses and have to contend with gas bills, some get bored of the same old weekends and find themselves spending money on elaborate forms of entertainment, and others have to start paying off their tabs at Lil' Peach. But whatever the reasons may be, the amount of cash we go through each week seems to be steadily increasing. The big question is: Who's going to pay for all this? We are, that's who.

Maybe some of you lucky ones have parents who are still willing to support your teen-age party lives, but the rest of us are out there working hard for our money. The number of hours we work and amount we make varies greatly. People range from putting in a couple of hours on the weekend for some pocket money to those who work hours each afternoon and are almost self-supporting.

It's amazing to find the variety of jobs that Newton South students have. There are always familiar faces in coffee shops, bagel stores, and ice cream parlors around town, and many people still put up with the horrors of babysitting in order to enjoy the tax-free benefit, but it gets a lot more interesting than that. Senior Kate Talmo, for instance, can be found doing live animal demonstrations with everything from alligators to porcupines at the Museum Of Science.

So when the time comes when you (or your parents) decide that you better start contributing to the family income, keep in mind that there are plenty of fun jobs out there; you just have to look for them. And then there's always me, scrubbing the floors of the photo room, day, after day, after day . . .

Senior Slump

When asked to remark on "Senior Slump", '98 graduate Sarah Feldman exclaimed, "Bring it on!". The class of 1998 has been waiting four long years to get at the excitement and relaxation of Senior Slump. Finally, as third term begins, we chuck our backpacks, grab our car keys, and run full force into the pleasures of "not having" to do work.

We start one night by deciding we don't really have to do our homework. A few days later we might choose to skip a couple of classes to go out for breakfast at IHOP. When our teachers complain to us about our lack of interest in school, we simply reply, "Hey, it's Slump."

At the Senior Slump dance, which was held on a school night, we laughed at the underclassmen who were cooped up in their rooms studying. We didn't have a care in the world as we all stumbled into classes the next morning, empty handed, and wiped out from the night before.

However, the senior class understands the importance of keeping up grades and this factor restrains our desire to completely give up on school work.

In fifteen years we may not remember what we did on Senior Skip day, or the fight we got into with our parents about the trip to Montreal, but we will never forget the freedom we had during Senior Slump.

The academic life at South is both rich and diverse. This year in particular has witnessed dramatic changes in the academic structure, but the faculty and students have met the challenges enthusiastically and responsibly.

As a preparation for the new 990 hour state mandate, seniors were encouraged to take five and a half majors, as opposed to some from past years who had only taken four. While students initially bemoaned the prospect of more work, most have come to accept it and have taken advantage of the opportunities it provides.

This addition of courses coincided perfectly with the introduction of several new course offerings into the syllabus. The replacement of Honors Biology with AP Biology gave the science department the extra teaching hours so that teachers could offer additional courses in their specialties. Mrs. Kraus now teaches a half-year course Neurobiology, while Mr. McLaren teaches a course in Astronomy. Petitioning from several students prompted the creation of an AP French Literature class, to complement the AP French Language Class. The completion of most of the construction also allowed for the reinstitution of several classes that could not be offered for lack of facilities, such as Media, which has a new multi-media room.

The completion of the construction also made travel around the school significantly easier. Students are no longer forced outside in order to go from class to class, but that does not mean they have more time on their hands. The ten-minute break before homeroom has been removed, which in the past had served to make the day less hectic. Other changes to the schedule include the introduction of one 70 minute block for every three 50 minute blocks and the shortening of J Blocks on Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday to lengthen the one on Tuesday. While this schedule is different from years past, people generally accept and even appreciate it.

This year has been one of change, at times exciting, at times inciting, but overall a productive and positive learning experience both for the teachers and students. Everyone should be commended for making the year such a success.

BREAKING out the books with ACADEMICS

Studying

I think high school could be the best time of anyone's life — if there were no school work. Unfortunately, there is such a thing as work, and it must be dealt with. One way of tackling the work is by going home the day before a math test and sitting down to begin studying, only to be distracted by a friend calling to remind you that the Patriots are playing on Monday night. Obviously priorities must be made, and the math test can certainly wait until tomorrow's free block.

This brings me to the work areas at our school. For the first time in a few years, we have a real library. It's actually kind of nice, but the problem is that whenever you go there, you are always inclined to talk with friends, and talking is certainly not allowed. Therefore, Wheeler Commons is still a popular place to do some in-school work.

Still others prefer to do their work at home, which has its own advantages. First of all, as Senior Jared Cohen demonstrates by always doing his homework in front of the T.V., one actually can watch the Pats game and do homework at the same time. Some study in the kitchen for easy access to the refrigerator, and others study in their room, with the radio constantly on. Any way you do it, studying isn't much fun, but must be done.

Teachers and Students

Whether it's a freshman trying to come up with the thesis statement to his or her Romeo and Juliet paper, a sophomore outlining the events leading to the American Revolution, a junior correcting his or her mistakes on an AP US History test, or a senior in search of college recommendations, South students can often be found with their teachers.

The relationship at Newton South between students and teachers is similar to that of a mother and child. Teachers feed information to students and at the same time give them the independence and freedom to go out and learn on their own. In times of crisis, teachers are there for the students to come crawling back to.

With the addition of a fourth J-Block and a seventy minute J-Block on Tuesdays, students have been better able to fit meetings with teachers into their schedules and likewise, teachers have been able to see more students.

Interaction at Newton South between students and teachers does extend beyond the classroom. Many teachers are actively involved with South's clubs and organizations and three new school-wide committees have students, teachers and administrators working side by side. Many teachers even provide students with phone numbers or e-mail addresses in hope that they won't hesitate to call when they have a question.

This strong relationship between students and their teachers is an integral part of Newton South, a school where learning is as important to teachers as it is to students.

Gym

Gym class is the only place at South where yelling, cheering and running around are commendable activities. Gym is a haven for many students who spend the greater parts of their school days at desks listening to teachers lecture. Gym is a break from everything we are accustomed to at South, and at the same time provides us with exercise.

The best part about gym is the time students get to spend with their classmates. It is a chance for students to relieve a little stress, get exercise and meet new people. There's no better way to get to know someone than to spend a few classes as a tennis partner.

Upperclassmen have the opportunity to fulfill their gym requirements outside of school, a program called independent study. This option is a viable one for students who have special athletic interests like dance or weight-lifting. The students who remain in gym class are the ones who enjoy activities such as Ms. Kennedy's "Blood and Guts Badminton," football, and ultimate frisbee.

Junior Yulie Lee says her favorite gym activity is yoga. "It's really relaxing even though you're lying on a smelly wrestling mat." Activities such as yoga, golf and wall climbing add diversity to what could be a boring curriculum, as Newton students have been taking gym classes since kindergarten. As nothing at South lacks an academic aspect, each year gym students spend some of their classes in classrooms. Topics such as drugs and alcohol, CPR, nutrition, and the ever-relevant stress management are covered.

Gym class at South helps to provide South students with well rounded high school educations. Most importantly though, it's fun.

Art

"You know, art is why I get up in the morning," writes singer Ani Di'Franco. For some South students, these words ring true. Despite the fact that sometimes it turns fingers blue, and other times it requires washing glue our of our hair, art is a favorite class of many at Newton South. It is a rare time of the academic day when we can listen to the radio, talk freely with classmates, and really express ourselves.

Art class provides a great, strong community. While creating masterpieces, students may chat about what is happening in their lives. Conversations sometimes begin with talk of soccer games and which teacher gives a lot of work. Then the talk can progress to Driver's Ed. videos and "on the road," to the SATs and the junior semi-formal. Now seniors discuss prospective colleges and how many days left until senior slump.

It is nice to share with friends during the day about concerns, experiences, and things to look forward to. "After ceramics class I feel my mind is clearer and that I am more relaxed," senior Temple Carroll said.

School can grow tiresome when class after class one must sit at a desk and listen to other people talk. It is relieving for many South students to have a hands-on activity to engage in. Students delight in expressing themselves creatively through painting, sculpting, sketching, and glazing.

"Art is what gets me through the day. I like it because of this art community, relaxation, and the chance I get to express myself," senior Sarah Feldman said.

A brand new building? Trips to New York, Spain, and Switzerland? Free concerts periodically throughout the year? Could this be some sort of new vacation resort? No, it is this year's music department. After moving in to its new home at the end of last year, the music department had great expectations for the new location, and we now realize that it was well worth the year and a half wait. One program that has benefited a great deal has been Gordon Duckel's electronic music program.

Mr. Duckel has put together an electronic music setup unparalleled by most other schools. It includes nine workstations, each complete with a computer and a Korg synthesizer. Kids now can sit down for a block and write an entire symphony by themselves, or perhaps link two computers together for a collaborative effort. Duckel is on the cutting edge of music education, and if you aren't involved now, you are missing out.

The new choral room has provided a superb setting for Mrs. Taylor's choirs, and it is a welcome change from the "music barn" which the room last year was affectionately called. The chorus has enjoyed unique opportunities to share their learnings with students from other schools. In late February, the chorus will host three other choirs from schools in the Boston Area. In late March, the choirs will travel to New York to sing. In April, the choirs will make their biannual trip across the Atlantic, this year to Switzerland. Another group of students with opportunities to travel abroad are the students of Mr. Duckel's bands and orchestra. They plan to travel to Spain.

The Jazz band welcomed new director Dave Harris this year. He has brought new life to the band, and has encouraged many new members to join. The Jazz band plans to visit the annual Berklee Jazz Festival to perform some of their favorite pieces.

Overall, the 1997-1998 school year was one of sweeping and welcome change for the music department. Hopefully in future years, this energy will blossom into something even greater.

In past years, South actors have always put on terrific performances, and the 1997-8 season was no exception. The year started off with a bang. Wild Oats, a romance of the old West, written by James McLure and directed by theater department head Jim Honeyman, was a huge success for senior stars Dalya Ruch, Rachel Heafitz, Raphael Martin, Jen Price, and Josh Kriegman. After that, Honeyman went on to direct The Shadow Box and Other Scenes, presented by the Acting Company, a class made up entirely of upperclassmen. Shadow Box followed the lives of a variety of people battling terminal illness, including a cancer patient (Matt Walsh), his wife (Price) and the daughter (Rebecca Leeman) of a very old woman. The scenes, some directed by seniors, showed off the talents of various other students, including Betsy Ogburn, Jill Shooman and Leah Fine. Next came the annual musical; this year A Chorus Line. The show, which sold out two performances, takes place at a dance audition in New York and starred Walsh as the show's director/choreographer, the operatic Heafitz as Diana Morales, Elizabeth Ross as busty Val and Jill Shooman as the arrogant Sheila. Other featured seniors included dance captain May Fogel, Jen Gordon, Issac Brody, Akiva Fox and Ruch. Lastly came To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday, which was entered into this year's Massachusetts High School Drama Festival (hosted at South). Gillian starred Craig Chosiad as David, a man coping with the loss of his wife (Jen Price). Shooman, Martin, and Amy Sanchez also contributed their talents to the piece. Indeed, theater season at South was once again very successful for the graduating class. This makes one only look forward to the upcoming plays South has to offer.

Nursery School

You must always wash your hands before eating.

For the past thirty years, the Helen Sweeney Nursery School has been functioning as a program for both nursery school children and Newton South High School students. Together, twelve area kids and thirty participating students interact in a classroom atmosphere. Trained in early childhood education practices and child development, the high school students immerse themselves with the children in activities such as music, art, and cooking. Students help the children promote healthy habits and develop skills in science and math. This collaboration of both learning and play makes the nursery school a fun environment to work and grow.

One to One

Newton South's One to One program, run by Nancy Holtzer, gives South students the opportunity to befriend and serve as role models for kids in the Newton elementary school system. The class meets once every other week and the high school students spend two and a half to three hours a week with their child.

At the beginning of the year, the high school students must undergo an interview process in which one is best matched with their "little brother or sister." During the month of November, the high school student finally meets his assigned child. This much anticipated moment is the beginning of the weekly meetings from November until May between student and child. Some students take their child out to the movies, make arts and crafts with them, play on the computer, or just plain bake cookies. Most children leave the program with a greater sense of self-confidence. The One to One program is a great experience for all its participants.

Life Skills

I'm all smiles!

The Life Skills Program helps mentally retarded individuals master skills needed in their daily lives. The program is set up so that high school students get a chance to work with the life skills students on a one-to-one basis. This year, students worked with nine of the Life Skills students, including Roni, Shara, Nichole, Christina, Jen, Ellen, Harry, Sitwat and Jason. They helped the kids to master skills ranging from cooking and baking to doing laundry and cleaning dishes. As high school students, they had to understand the limits of a mentally retarded individual and teach certain lesson plans revolving around their limitations. It is a challenge, but it is also a great accomplishment for all students involved in the Life Skills Program.

English as a Second Language

Mrs. Doolin leads a class discussion.

The adjustments and changes foreign students have to make when moving to a new country with a new language and a new culture are extraordinary. That's what makes ESL such a beneficial and important program. Students from all over the world attend ESL and find it essential in studying. The ESL classes serve to help students adapt the typical classes of the other high school students. ESL undoubtedly becomes a solid base for future careers for many students. It is a vital tool to students who need to learn the mechanics of writing, reading, and speaking English.

Is it time for lunch yet?

Hey, we're having fun here.

Working on the computer is fun.

I can't believe there are seventy more minutes in this block.

Ramon says food and friends are his favorite activities.

Activities. Some people do them for the exercise or mental stimulation. Others use them as an excuse to get out of their homes, or even to fill up their college applications. Whatever the reason, extra-curricular activities abound at South where the average student is a participant in something. The choices are endless for the discriminating person.

There are social action clubs that work on tough issues and try to improve our lives in a small way. The two award-winning newspapers at South showcase students' art and accomplishments, as well as writing. The behind-the-scenes work for the newspapers involves students in the community when searching for ads. Perhaps experiencing how a paper is brought through the stages for publication is the most novel for some. South Stage, Newton South's drama club, produces a never-ending flow of shows. For the extroverted person that finds himself making big hand gestures in the halls, drama is the place to be. Academic clubs often bridge the gap between learning and competition. The Mock Trial Team exemplifies that, as they spend months studying law and case strategy before competing in the state tournament.

Sports are a huge part of the lives of many students because of the time that is spent training, practicing, and performing. Consistent winning performances can be counted on by the track and cross-country teams, while many other teams struggle to find their niche in the competitive Dual County League. Above all else, the Lions can be counted on for good sportsmanship, team unity, and spirit.

On the next few pages, the smiles in the group photos give insight to the participants' delight and satisfaction that comes with being a part of something they care about. Seniors can look back at this section to remind themselves of all the activities they tried while in High School. Other students can get ideas for new things to try in the upcoming year. Whatever the case, everyone is sure to spot their own face or a friend's among the pictures of student activities.

BREAKING through Activities

Regulus

Through boxes of twizzlers, hours of alphabetizing, cropping, typing, and a whole lot of organization (attempts), Sara's basement will never be the same. We scrambled to meet our deadlines with meetings at the crack of dawn and into the late night hours. We fell through chairs and fell down stairs, but some oreo yogurt with jimmies on the side always helped us through the rough times. Amid all the chaos, we found that one orange pencil, a ruler, and a few "tickets" were enough to get it all done. Through boxes of tissues (thank you Ramona) and our own little catfights, we met each day ready to take on another yearbook deadline. After countless meetings and endless dedication, we are sad to say good-bye as we now pass on the legacy to our new editors. We are grateful for the help we received and will surely miss the fun we had in the process. Thanks to all who deserve it . . . good luck Regulus '99!

Denebola

After having tied for first place at New England Press Association Journalism Contest, the reigns of Denebola were handed over to the staff of Volume 37. These aspiring, young journalists were challenged to both live up to the standards of the previous volume and blaze their own trails.

And they did. Although size is not everything, Volume 37 is proud to have published the largest Graduation issue in history (52 pages) as well as the largest monthly issue (November: 32 pages.)

Volume 37 was the first group of students to make use of the new journalism technology and space, and launched Denebola into the technology age by introducing Denebola's WWW site. Several staff members also appeared on the Massachusetts Corporation for Education Television's Net Day broadcast last March.

As for news, Volume 37 not only covers the retirement of Dr. Seasholes and the subsequent introduction of our new principal, but also the sudden resignation of Irwin Blumer, the opening of South's new space, and the mayoral election.

Paste-up continued to be eventful and wacky, as editors and the advisor alike provided for fun yet productive atmosphere. Hurrying to make a deadline, correcting last minute mistakes, laying pages, and constantly eating are experiences that we will never forget.

On behalf of the Senior Editors of Volume 37, we would like to thank all of our staff members, contributors, advertisers, and custodians who helped make Denebola yet again a success. Oh, and that funny little man running around in the bow tie had something to do with it, too. Good luck, Volume 38.

We at The Lion's Roar adore our position as the udent newspaper of Newton South. The appreciaon awarded us by both readers and scholastic jourlism organizations is made all the sweeter by our nowledge that the Roar is 100% student produced. om the simplest news article to broad editorial desions, we do it by ourselves.

We love this tradition because it lets us be wacky, nny, clever, or serious. Where else could you find azy Focus topics, a Student Showcase, a look into e tracking system, and a centerfold on 19th cenry German philosophers. We have celebrated the ccess of peers, and mourned the loss of a friend. hroughout, we strove for journalistic integrity witht being afraid to push boundaries or to provoke ontroversy.

Of our accomplishments, we couldn't be prouder. 'e were awarded first place by both the Massachuetts Press Association and the New England Schostic Press Association. Our graduation issue, at 52 ages, was a Herculean task for our editors and conibutors.

Our advisers — Briggs and Duckel — were always ere when we needed them, and left us alone when e needed that. We respected their opinions, and ey respected our desire to keep a student newsaper. For this, for the citrus sale, and for all the flack ey've taken when we made unpopular decisions, e thank them.

Perhaps what is best about the Roar is that it can ovoke passions English papers or math assignents simply can't. Once an idea of yours makes the ansition to hard print, it's difficult not to keep comg back. As a team we discovered what journalism nd student expression could mean. By learning toether, we formed bonds that will last throughout gh school and hopefully beyond.

Reflections

Reflections is Newton South's art and literary magazine, accepting submissions of students' poetry, prose, essays, plays, and black-and-white photography and artwork from September through April of each school year. All works are considered anonymously at open weekly meetings during which staff members discuss, offer feedback about, and vote for or against the publication of each piece. The staff at these meetings is comprised of any students who wish to attend; there are no requirements for being on staff. Along with the pieces selected at meetings, the magazine publishes the winning entries from the Roland M. Heintzelman competition for excellence in creative writing. In addition to its traditional publication of a large edition each May, the magazine this year for the first time published a First Edition in February. Both editions of the magazine proudly showcased South's artistic and literary talent.

South Stage

This was a year of firsts for South Stage. The production organization saw many changes and exciting new arrivals this season. The long awaited auditorium finally saw some action. Partly because of the new space, South Stage was able to produce the sell out "A Chorus Line," which sold more tickets than in any other show in recent history at South. The ticket sales were easier to manage because of the new reserved seating system made possible by our ticket window and ticketing computer.

Advisor and director Jim Honeyman grew ambitious in his desire for a phenomenal fall show when he decided to audition "Wild Oats" in June. But nothing can compare to the ambitious nature of hosting the Massachusetts Drama Festival. The preliminary round which took place on February 28 included 6 schools along with our own entry, "To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday."

Having the new auditorium has allowed us to once again host the joint Shakespeare production with Newton North. The hard working South Stage officers have ensured that this rocky year of firsts has been an extremely successful and exhilarating one.

Class Officers

The senior class officers consisted of six young men and women who spent much of their energy performing various tasks to ensure fun times for the Class of 1998 and the school as a whole. Whether it be bugging Dunkin' Donuts for donations, coming into school early to hang posters, or attempting to decipher a chaperone's name, these officers always used their time productively. Each Wednesday afternoon, the officers could be found with their wondrous advisor, Ms. Bryant, planning dances, shows, The Senior Trip, and other events to promote class unity. In spite of the numerous opinions to which the officers complied, they did the best they could to balance the needs of the class to ensure an exciting and fun-filled year.

The football team tackles to score.

Athletics have captured the hearts and minds of a quarter of the school population every season. From fall to spring, in every sport from football to track and field, athletes have shown their love and dedication. "It was great to be on a soccer team that broke the streak and reached the state tournament," senior Josh Zaharoff said. Athletics and team spirit often go hand in hand. Athletes can often be seen in the hallways clad in orange and blue or donning an outrageous piece. "I love dressing up in orange and blue to show the whole school how psyched we are," senior Rachel Abramovitz said. However, don't be fooled by their silliness; on the fields, they are as focused and serious as lions. For many, playing a sport every day after school helps them to relieve stress. "Athletics are a great way to remove yourself from the day to day stress of school and homework," senior Shawn Deweese said. For others, athletics allow them to meet people and make lasting friendships. "Cross country and track was great because you can meet awesome upper-classmen like Chi Quang Hoang," senior Yuval Mazor said. Indeed, athletics have enriched the lives of student athletes and the life of the school community and will continue to do so for years to come. "Lion Pride!" sophomore Lulu Fan said enthusiastically.

BREAKING records with SPORTS

Football

The 1997 Newton South Lions Football season started out with a fast-paced pre-season engineered by the team's tri-captains Conor O'Shaughnessey, Dan Valente, and Colin Hickey. The team's annual double sessions geared the Lions up for a long and tiring season. The two pre-season outings against North Reading and West Roxbury were extremely successful as the Lions rolled over both opponents. Senior DeVann Vincent reflects, "We had a great pre-season and we thought that if we could carry that over to the regular season schedule, it would be a good year."

The Lions did bring that intensity with them to the first few games which resulted in wins over Millis and Bishop Fenwick (snapping Fenwick's 24-game winning streak). These two wins came on the heels of an embarrassing opening day loss to Belmont High School, so as the Lions headed into the pivotal game of their season, they stood at 2-1. That pivotal game came on the Saturday, October 4 at South's home field. Madison featured one of the top running backs in the state, Sharif Hartgrove. On that day, Hartgrove proved his dominance to everyone in the state as he scored all of Madison's points and put on a show for the crowd. But the Lions, not Hartgrove, controlled the outcome of the game. With three minutes left in the game, South drove down the length of the field, trailing 26-22. The game came down to one final play where O'Shaughnessey was sacked while attempting a pass to the end zone. After that game, the season collapsed.

The Lions then entered DCL league play unprepared and unfocused for their potent foes. Injuries plagued the team week in and week out, sidelining major contributors such as junior running back Joe Kimpel, junior lineman Jon Zuker, senior tight end Adam Cirel, Hickey, O'Shaughnessey, and many others. Because of this, the lack of focus, and inexperience, the team was unable to win. Through it all though, the seniors hung tough and brought life to younger players during every tough week of practice. This undying will paid off in the second to last game, against Wayland High School. The Lions fell behind 21-0 in the first half, but at halftime, the seniors decided to take over the game. In the second half, the Lions put together two scoring drives and a rock solid defense that dominated Wayland. Their retribution did not result in a victory on the scoreboard, rather a mental victory by proving to themselves that they could compete in the league. "I was very proud of the way these seniors led the team all year long," comments head coach Dick Quigley. "They deserved more. I'm just glad that they got the feel for what it was like to play hard and control the opponent, like they did in Wayland."

Girls' Soccer

Carlynn gets psyched for the game.

Rebounding from the past season tainted by multiple injuries, the young squad of 1997 lions were roaring to go from day one of pre-season. Led by the resilient and effective leadership of the three senior tri-captains Solonje Burnett, Kristina Cormier, and K.C. Stover, the team remained focused, spirited, and committed throughout the entire fall. The squad shared in suicide drills, spaghetti suppers, and swollen, aching muscles, which all contributed to a sense of team bonding. "We were all in it together, win or lose — and we always had fun!," reminisced sophomore Eliza Krigman.

Injuries once again took their toll hampering the team's ability to achieve their goal of a Tournament appearance. However, key victories down the home stretch helped send the senior members off on a four game winning streak. Coaches Gwen Smith and Doug McCarthy guided and encouraged the varsity squad, while nurturing a strong sense of enthusiasm and lion pride. Newcomer Patrice Hagen led the JV corps to one of their best seasons in recent memory. With a large and dominating group of talented juniors, combined with a handful of athletic underclassmen, the team expects to be perfectly seasoned for the upcoming fall, having established just the right balance of game experience and maturity. "Watch out," warns junior Carlynn Finn, "when we take a lion-sized bite out of the DCL next year."

Boys' Soccer

In coach P.J. Haskel's final year, the men's soccer team has achieved its once impossible dream of making the state tournament. South accomplished both goals gaining respect in the DCL and qualifying for states with a core of experienced players. The team was composed of fifteen returning lettermen and 13 seniors, Senior Captains: Danny Kleinman, Shawn Deweese, and Ian Cohen; and seniors: Matt Bloom, Matt Bridges, Jon Evans, Nat Jabbawy, Andy Lightman, Mike Mazzotta, Jon Phillips, Gabe Porter, Sam Tucker, and Josh Zaharof. Despite losing multiple players to injuries and other causes and assistant coach Nate Spencer to the JV coaching spot, the team was able to finish with a 6-6-6 record the first winning season since Haskel has been at South. Many strong underclassmen and two new assistant coaches, Jeff Dias and Steve Aronson, provided the support the team needed.

Men's soccer rose to the challenges of the season tying Acton Boxboro, beating Lincoln-Sudbury twice, once at their home field, and the final challenge of the season qualifying for the state tournament by beating Ashland in a spectacular night game. Led by Jon Evans' multiple goal game, South was able to come back from a three-to-one deficit with less than twenty minutes to go in the game, and won four to three to get the needed two points for the victory to earn a tournament berth. The team was the first South men's soccer team in six seasons to make the state tournament and will look forward to promising years to come with the talented group of underclassmen.

Girls' Cross Country

Once again the Newton South women's cross country team had a spectacular season. Tri-captains Anna Beardslee, Jenny Hoang, and Emily Rindler led the squad fearlessly. With the dynamic duo of coaches Steven and Marianne McChesney, the team achieved great feats. The women of the lion were undefeated in the DCL throughout the regular season. The varsity team were the DCL champions for the sixth consecutive year, placing five runners in the top ten. The junior varsity pack dominated by placing nine in the top ten while the freshman placed three in the top five. It was a sea of orange and blue as the top fifteen of each race collected their awards. The All-State team, composed of Julie Farago, Aly Venti, Melissa Cohen, Adri Logalbo, Beardslee, Sarah Venti, and Hoang, won the Eastern Mass. meet handily for the sixth straight year. The following week, in the All-State meet, these women battled snow, Tigers, and Raptors, successfully defeating arch-rival Newton North, but finishing second behind Brookline. These women had a goal of being All-State champions all season long, some even for the past four years. Although they fell short of this goal, the season was full of personal records and laughs, and there is much hope for the future. Each member of the team worked incredibly hard all season. Whether is was recovery runs, Baldpate Hill, or lydiards, the women put all their effort into it and had fun doing so.

Next year's team holds a lot of potential as the team returns five of its top seven. The Lion squad will be led by tri-captains Melissa Cohen, Julie Farago, and Adri Logalbo. The state team alternates, Liza Harrison, Megan Fletcher, Jessica Solomon, and Liza Silverman, will have the opportunity to step up as well. The team now looks forward to next year to apply their knowledge and improve. Go NSXC!

Boys' Cross Country

Coming off an undefeated season, capped by a DCL Championship, and a second trip to the All-State Meet, the 1997 Men's Cross Country team was primed for continued success and loaded with spirit. Although we did not meet all our goals, this year's team will still go down as the fastest NSXC team ever.

From the hottest days early last summer, right through the bitter cold and rain of Novmeber, the men of the Lions were running. Afternoons were spent climbing Baldpate Hill, racing endless loops, lydiards and fartleks, or on "easy" runs on Cemetery Six, Garbage Five, and Route 9 Four. And on the coldest Wednesday of the fall, we all met at Cold Springs Park to burn candles and incense, and contemplate fighting the demons and obtaining our goals.

The result of such intense dedication was visibly apparent in races. Led by Tri-Captains, Vihann Kong, Yuval Mazor, and Robbie Silverman, the men enjoyed one of their most successful seasons ever. The junior varsity and freshman boys combined for a 16-0 record, and sheer dominance in the DCL and the whole state. The varsity experienced early success, too, as they won their first major meet ever, taking the Amherst Invitational by storm. They went 7-1 in the DCL, and witnessed the destruction of their four year old home course record at the hands of Yoni Haiminis. Unfortunately, the team struggled in the latter part of the season, and was disappointed with a third place finish at the league meet and seventh at the Class State Meet.

Nevertheless, the 1997 NSXC Men's team was a true force in Massachusetts Cross Country, and with the continued leadership of the indomitable Coaches Steve and Marianne McChesney, and captains Yuriy "The Pimp" Bratslavskiy, Justin "Freshman" Panarese, and Hideo "Yoshi" Saito, the future of lions cross country looks extremely bright.

Field Hockey

The 1997 girls' field hockey team "ROCKED"! The season was a successful one for the team in terms of spirit, growth, and attitude. The record of 6 wins, 4 losses, and 6 ties shows that they worked both hard and together as one team. Their talent and aggression led them towards the state tournament and built great friendships throughout the whole team. Hoping to compete in the post-season tournament games, the field hockey team battled its way through some of the toughest leagues in Massachusetts. "Although we did not get to the state tournament, we still stuck together and had fun!" said tri-captain Abby Kischner.

The team consisting of ten seniors, four juniors and three sophomores was well-rounded and determined, leading in the direction of making Newton South history. Supported by a strong group of seniors and many powerful underclassmen, the team really shone. Seniors Jenn Gordon, Leah Fine, Lindsey Goodman, Robyn Manouk; tri-captains Abby Kirshner, Alison Suzuki, Sheri Yee, Emily Sneider and Jill Rashba and goalie Sophie Sahinidas. Juniors Michelle Baldasari, Bethie Miller, Kate Levy and Melissa Penn. Sophomores Eliza Berenberg, Lindsey Sudalter and Rachel Webber. Despite a few early season injuries and disappointing losses, the team stuck together and boldly played strong to the completion of the season of 1997.

Coaches Lyn Meterparel and Jane Roderick inspired the team to work hard and give every game 110%. "NSHS field hockey goes beyond a stick and a ball; it's a game of desire," said Sophomore Lindsey Sudalter. The team always walked onto the field with the desire to win. No matter what the outcome of the game, each player was able to leave with a positive attitude knowing it had been a game well played. The combination of determination and spirit created one of the best teams in Newton South history.

Golf

This year's Newton South golf team, led by Coach Tom Steves and Junior Captain Jeff Sieber, had a great deal of fun parading around Newton Commonwealth Golf Club. Although their record was not one to be remembered, the excitement was all there. It was an outstanding success for new players such as senior Dave Linshaw who dominated in the three spot, junior Mike Freedman who played consistently at number two, freshman Josh Grodin who work the ball in the four spot, and sophomore Amanda Burrows who kept up the pace while playing number six. There were only three returning players this year, number five, Sophomore Jordan Stern who scored much needed points for his team, number seven, Sophomore Mike Cherny whose consistent play made him a contender, and finally the most notable player of the team, Captain Jeff Sieber who governed the competition with his experienced consistency.

Senior Dave Linshaw said, "I regret not having taken up golf earlier in life. It is a lot of fun, and the team is a great learning experience. I am the only player leaving after this season due to graduation, and am sorry that I won't be able to play next year." The team, being young, should have an excellent season next year now that the players are a little more experienced. And with the help of Coach Tom Steves the team can only improve.

The team enjoyed playing other teams at many courses in the neighboring area, while competing in the competitive Dual County League. Some of these courses were well manicured courses such as Pinebrook Country Club, Concord Country Club, and Nashawtuc Country Club. But special thanks from all the members of the golf team goes to Newton Commonwealth Golf Club.

Volleyball

Volleyball is a sport unlike any other. Due to the common misunderstanding that volleyball is a simple nonaggressive sport in which you rotate around six general spaces, its essence is captured by few. It is these few who have learned to throw their bodies at the floor, do push-ups with a smile, and sweat with pride. The others have been fooled. Volleyball is about intensity, determination, and desire. It's about pushing yourself to limits you never thought existed and reaching goals you believed surpassed your abilities. Volleyball is an opportunity, an open door through which you learn teamwork, motivation, and confidence. It's about trust, in your teammates, and in your self. Most importantly though, volleyball is an understanding, an understanding that there IS such a place as East Cupcake; we are living in real "life-life"; there is a tiny bug that lives at target; our "cracks" have never been so important, we have "guns to load," "no ball touches the floor around me"; and hey we LOVE to serve!

It is the passion for this sport which allows them to leave a mark in history each year. Their achievements perfectly display their hard work and dedication, as they finished the season with a historic record of 18-2, making it to the quarter finals of the state tournament, as well as leading the league as undefeated DCL champions.

Volleyball is an aggressive sport and a competitive attitude. It's accepting a challenge and overcoming fear. It's the look in your eye, the tone of your voice, and the burn in your quads as you long to stay on your toes. It's spotting potential and working to perfection. Volleyball is about learning, excelling, and accomplishing. Volleyball is an experience and a memory that will always keep a special place in your heart. Most essentially though, volleyball is a tradition; a team whose honor, pride, and respect will continue to heighten each and every year.

Cheerleading

Newton South cheerleaders show us how it's done.

From "Bugaloo" to competition, the 97-98 cheerleading team performed the best in the DCL. Having the largest and most experienced team in years, the squad shared their spirit at football and basketball games. Their routines were performed with excellence, placing them second in the DCL cheerleading competition. Coached by Christina Grillo, the team "owned it" on the field and court. Stunts and pyramids were performed, which created even more excitement among the fans. "Dedication and effort transformed the team into the best in years," says Coach Grillo. Lengthy practices and workouts paid off, as the team's skills were taken to new heights. Senior captains Rachel Abramovitz and Nicki Brother helped to build and unify the squad. "It was our commitment and enthusiasm of the team, which helped us to achieve our goals," says Nicki Brother. "Individual and team effort always is our top priority," Rachel Abramovitz added. Cheerleading is essential to school spirit, and this year our team displayed tremendous vitality in keeping the tradition alive.

On November 26, 1997, the mighty Class of 1998 triumphed over the heavily favored juniors, proving that the senior women truly rule the school. The Class of '99 scored first, however, on a 60-yard shake-'n-bake run by Adri "Diesel" Logalbo, but were unable to convert for the extra two. The senior defense, led by Lindsay Goodman and Robin Manouk, held the juniors scoreless for the rest of the half, allowing the potent senior offense to go to work. With Amanda Cuiffo at QB and Solange "Sweet Wheels" Burnett in the backfield, the women of '98 proved too strong for the junior defense and took an 8-6 lead into half-time.

Following a muddy pyramid and excellent cheering ("God made the world, God make the lakes, God make the juniors, everyone makes mistakes") by the senior guys, and a feisty brawl under the scoreboard, both teams returned to the field fired up and hungry for blood. Defense dominated the majority of the second half, until the juniors scored again, after a series of questionable penalties, and went up 14-8 with less than four minutes to play.

The Class of '98 had one more shot. Anchored by the amazing athleticism of Burnett, the senior squad marched the length of the field, and, with 14 seconds on the clock, Burnett highstepped into the promised land, tying the game at 14. The seniors went for two, and once again Burnett carried the ball over the goal-line and into the sweet throes of victory. Seniors win, 16-14. Whoomp, there it is and can I get a hallelujah?

Girls' Basketball

Coming into the season, the girl's basketball team had many goals and expectations. After losing only three players from the previous successful year, the team was looking to make waves in the DCL. With Coach Aronson and the leadership of co-captains Solonje Burnett and Emily Brock, the team did just that.

The exciting year started with the induction of two newcomers, junior Rae-Ann Rezzuti and freshman Lauren Barnett. This close group of ten players had the dynamics and chemistry that helped them win games. Whether it was before games at someone's house or in practice, the girls always knew how to have fun. There were countless laughs and jokes among the players. Everyone looked forward to being together. Nonetheless, focus was the word of the year.

Throughout the year, the girl's basketball team took great pride in both their individual and team defense. With defenders Burnett, Joanna Ducey, Carlynn Finn, and Adri Logalbo in the backcourt molesting other team's guards, opponents were forced to play badly. Emily and Anna Brock shut down the middle.

Offense was more of a struggle for the team. Consistency came from Brock and Jessica Donovan. The advantage in post was evident as the team had the Brocks and Kiara Upshaw. On any given night, however, anyone could lead the team in points.

Look for the basketball team to be a force again next year. With players stepping up, the team hopes to continue to be successful in the post season.

Boys' Basketball

Success for the Newton South basketball team has been as inevitable as sunrises and sunsets for the past decade. With only one flawed season in the mix, the team has been a perennial force in the league and beyond. Last year was no exception as the team finished third in the DCL and earned a tournament berth. This year's squad returned three starters and six lettermen total which gave the Lions plenty to build on. Of course, the team did lose the indomitable Onaje Woodbine, but senior tri-captain Tyson Tyler looks poised to fill Onaje's immense shoes. Tyler will not be alone though, as senior captains, Michael Beaser and John Goodson appear ready to take their respective games to the next level. These three players, led by both example on and off the court, guarantee that the team will be prepared for each game.

The 1997-98 Lions are a unique bunch in that the squad consists of eleven seniors, a record for a Coach Killilea team. Because of the obvious maturity of the players, coach demands nothing short of perfection come game time. Returning from last year are Robert Bullock, Ari Hauben, and Jeff Levin. Bullock controls the paint while Hauben and Levin tend to do most of their damage from the perimeter. Adam Cirel, a great defensive point guard, and Jamie Pearlstein, a pinpoint outside shooter, were late season call-ups last year and are predicted to play a key role in the team's success. Also, seniors Colin Hickey, Derek Perlman, and Lutfi Lutfi are sure to log some serious minutes with Hickey launching his majestic jumpers while Perlman and Lutfi dominate down low. The severely outnumbered underclassman, junior John Henry Davis, and freshman Seth Hauben, are both destined for unavoidable accomplishment in the future and pivotal roles this season. For so many years, South basketball has a mark of success and this year can only support the hype.

Girls' Track

Spirit and enthusiasm dominated the indoor track team as they ran, jumped, and threw their way through the season. The Lions finished the season with less than perfect records but an incredible amount of individual improvement. With strong senior leadership, young stars and top coaching, the team left its mark on the DCL.

At practices they lifted weights, performed gymcraftics, got rope-burn, and affirmed their accomplishments. The distance runners trekked all over Newton through ice, snow, sleet, and rain, while the sprinters conquered their fear of heights climbing the rope.

For the sprinters the magic word was explode. Collectively they mastered block starts, running form, and even scissor kick. The distance runners braved the cold, Dark and Steve's endless meetings to become the biggest threats in the DCL. They all learned about safe driving and hood ornaments.

They left the Reggie Lewis track with sore throats from cheering and screaming. The boys and girls teams practiced together, competed together and supported each other. Bus rides were often dangerous with flying pretzels and cheerios, but at the end of the day it was always hip, hip hooray for indoor track.

Standout individual performances highlighted the season for the Men of the Lion. The 4x800 relay team, composed of seniors Bryce Kelley, Yuval Mazor, Yoni Haiminis, and junior Justin Panarese, qualified for Nationals for the third year in a row. Kelley also qualified as an individual, running a state-best 600. Junior Joe Kimpel led the technical crew in the hurdles and high jump, and, along with junior Kevin Wang, explored the possibilities of parking lot workouts. Seniors Edwin Chung and Ray Peng also had strong seasons, as junior Hideo Saito, and sophomores Peter Belenky and Doug Mitchell. Several freshmen also showed promise, including Mike Russell, Duncan Wells, and Joey "70" Panarese.

However, the Lions did not fare as well as a team. Led by tri-captains Mazor, Razor Ramon Downes, and Robbie Silverman, the team ended with a record of 3-5 and a fourth place finish at the League Meet. Beset with illness and injury, including a season-ending hamstring pull for Downes, the Lions often competed undermanned. The team had fun nonetheless, burning up the track at Reggie, smoking the streets of Newton, and cleaning the halls of Newton out. Bring on Outdoor!

Hockey

Shooman's livin' large.

Coming into the '97-'98 season, the Newton South Lions' Hockey team had one goal: to make it to the Division III State Tournament. After a heartbreaker in the opening round of the tournament last year, South wanted to make it back and prove that they could win when it counted. "We knew that there is enough will to make the tournament on this team," commented senior co-captain Shawn DeWeese, "all it takes is putting that will into action and putting the puck in the net and we'll get there." Unfortunately for the Lions, putting the puck in the net would be a little tougher than any player expected.

With an opening day defeat to Dover-Sherborn, South got off to a rocky start though the final score of 6-3 was a poor reflection of the game itself. Dover dominated the first period scoring four goals while South could only watch as they out-skated, out-hit, and out-hustled the Lions. Despite intense play during the second and third periods, South trailed 6-1. With minutes remaining, Dover replaced their goalie and South scored its two late goals. In the weeks following the Dover game, South suffered several close losses, but was still in contention in the league when they met the Bedford Buccaneers on Saturday, January 17. For their first game in a week, South came out flying. They played the first two periods with the intensity that comes with knowing that a loss would knock them out of tournament contention. Although the Lions could not score, their defense, engineered by co-captain John Noble and junior Jared Wiesel, played prudently but fiercely when necessary. Making monster saves as always was junior assistant captain Alex Burack, whose steller play in net kept the Lions from falling behind by more than one goal. The Lions unfortunately ended in a 5-0 loss and, more importantly, a loss of the entire season. Coach Rezutti reflected on the loss, "We played so well for two periods and I really thought that the victory would come our way. But, once again, if you can't score, you can't win."

Despite the consistent effort from junior wingers Dan Aronson, Dave Levitan, Serge Voronov, senior winger Mike Costa, and sophomore center Eric Shooman, the Lions were never able to keep up scoring against proficient teams. The remainder of the season became a time for younger players, such as freshmen Jared Tocci, John Trial, Brett Corson, and Seth Weener to get more playing time and improve on their game for next year. Noble remarks, "I'm really disappointed with the way things have turned out, but sometimes there is nothing you can do to stop the losing. I know, though, that the Lions of '99 will get to the tournament and do what we seniors only wish for."

Wrestling

At the beginning of the winter season the wrestling team looked very strong with a great group of returning varsity wrestlers and many new freshman. Especially after a very rigorous and intense pre-season run by Tri-Captains David Linshaw, Eli Freedman and Rob Kawada, the team seemed unstoppable.

After a win in their first match, the team started on a downhill spiral. Numerous wrestlers like Junior Jon Ebb, Senior Rob Kawada and Freshmen Chris Lo and Matt Corley acquired injuries that put them out for the season. Also many other wrestlers quit the team due to problems with the coaching. The final action that really buried the team was when coaches, James Police and Thomas Walsh announced their resignation.

The team seemed very down but not all was lost. Immediately after the departure of Coach Police and Walsh, former Newton South wrestlers, Matt Malone and Ron Vachon, along with Newton North coach, Jon Stalo, helped out the team until a new coach was found. Coach Paul Murphy soon took over the team bringing with him former Newton South wrestler, Matt Chism, to assist.

Every member on the team really stepped it up for the rest of the season. The new coaches brought about a new spirit and team started to perform very well. Although the team ended with only four wins due to the many forfeits where the team lacked wrestlers, they had a strong showing at the sectional, state and JV tournaments.

At the Sectional Tournament, Junior Gabe Verderguer placed 8th, Sophomore Socrates Rosenfeld placed 5th, Senior Mike Semizaglou placed 4th, Senior Eli Freedman placed 3rd, and Senior David Linshaw placed 2nd. In the State Tournament Senior Eli Freedman won two matches while Rosenfeld, Linshaw and Semizaglou all won one. Also in a Junior Varsity tournament at the end of the season, Zach Sharby placed 2nd.

Overall this was a building year for the team. Many new Freshmen and Sophomores gained a lot of much needed experience and it looks like there will be a large group of 8th graders entering next year to make for a very strong team. Everyone on the team is happy with the performance this year and looks forward to a great season next year.

Girls' Swimming and Diving

Senior tri-captains Laura Walton, Stephany Samuels, and K.C. Stover led this year's swimming and diving team to three dual meet wins and an enjoyable and rewarding season for all those involved. The captains organized numerous dinners and team get-togethers that helped to bring the team closer.

Maybe it was because the team came together so well that they could pull off three close wins over teams from Archbishop Williams, Dover-Sherbourne, and Westford Academy. It was the last meet that will be remembered by the team as the most exciting of the season. Because Newton South had a broken diving board, and had to cancel the diving portion of the competition, they started the meet 10 points behind Westford Academy. It took last minute organizing by coaches Scott Pohlman and Michael Kennedy to create two relays that could take first and second place in the last event to win the meet.

Finishing the season with such a dramatic win, the team looks forward to next season with high hopes. The entering freshman class has strong swimmers that should add to the talent of the returning varsity to create a team that will be able to make more waves in league competition.

Boys' Swimming and Diving

Although this years swim season ended with a losing record, it proved to be a basis for future successful seasons. Captain Andrew Berger took charge of the dwindling team after last year's loss of state champ Josh Osterberg and two other senior captains.

Left with few swimmers, the team gained a powerful group of freshman and two Juniors, Jon Dufuss and Matt Kaplan. The great recruiting success came from Brazilian exchange student Igor Freitas, who teamed with captain Andrew Berger to form a nasty one-two punch in the 100 and 50 free. The distance events were controlled by sophomore Matt Greytak and freshman Mike Goldberg. Senior Josh Korn and sophomore Dylan Ashbrook mastered the art of breaststroke and freshman Phil Ng controlled the 100 fly. The heart of the team was based on the 200 and 400 free relay where Boston Latin upsets were won. Headed off by Walter Cho, Goldberg, Freitas and Berger, they proved valuable with many victories. The loss of two great divers was filled by Cho and Kaplan, who both scored impressive points while Evan Kopel gave great consistency to his dives.

Overall the season went well, but as more people put on the speedo, and more people attempt such a difficult sport, we will see in seasons to come how the troubles we had this season help us in ones to come.

Girls' Gymnastics

Mara concentrates on one foot.

The Newton South High School Girls' Gymnastics team has trudged through a series of injuries and disappointments this season but emerged with their spirit unscathed. We explored the true nature of team spirit and friendship. Our team was abundant in freshmen talent, sophomore guidance, junior experience, and senior sage. All these qualities combined to form a well connected team devoted to sportsmanship. And while the records were dimmer than ones prior, we forged friendships between classes and cliques and never lost sight of the fun and playfulness of the sport.

However, as with any sport, injuries are inevitable and this year we were plagued by long, sustaining ones. There were many times when we lost morale and any hopes of maintaining healthy gymnasts, but at the end, when all was said and done, we all competed and cheered with vigor.

This may be extremely hackneyed and needlessly cliché, but NSHS's girls' gymnastics team endured their adversities and preserved their enthusiasm with the Lion pride unparalleled to others in the past.

Boys' Gymnastics

The '97-'98 season has been one of marked improvement for the Lions. The team's score has steadily risen and has now reached the mid nineties. It is clear that the team's hard work is starting to pay off.

The team is led by co-captains Mike Mazzotta and Jon Eddy as well as senior veterans Ezra Benjamin, Newton Lee, Evan Ritt and Kevin Su. This year's team has shown improvement. Eddy is swinging giants on high bar for the first time and he has also learned a handstand on rings. Both Mazzotta and Sam have new tricks on floor, and Benjamin has excelled at rings and high bar. The pommel horse team has risen to a new level with the help of Lee and Su.

This season the Lions, once again under the expert guidance of coach Tom Steeves, made it to the state meet where a select group of seven teams will compete for the state title. "If we all focus and clean up our routines, then we have a shot," remarked Eddy.

While the loss of many seniors is detrimental, not all is lost. The team still has juniors Brian Sam, Mike Osipenko, Tony Fabricant and Emmett Sprecker as well as freshmen Mike Yee and Justin Sharby. The 1998-1999 team is looking strong with these returning gymnasts. The Lions are also awaiting the return of Chris Dong, who took a one-year hiatus from the team. His return will be a big boost for boy's gymnastics.

This season has witnessed a transition in South Gymnastics and it is clear that the team has the momentum to continue on this path in the future.

SKIING

Whether at Weston Ski Track or grilling hot dogs and hamburgers at Blue Hills, the ski team was always having fun. Although neither the boys' nor the girls' team finished in the top slots in the Mass Bay East League, there are several strong underclassmen who will hopefully make the South ski team more successful in the future.

The girls' team, led by junior co-captains Emily Bodner and Stephanie Whitehorn, did fairly well in both cross country and downhill. Before the loss of sophomore Sophie Dabuzhsky to a knee injury, both she and Bodner consistently placed in the top ten. Freshman Kim Honig also showed what she could do, placing in the top 30.

In cross country, Bodner and Whitehorn placed in an unexpected 4th and 5th places, gaining 71 points for the team. Other strong skiers who will hopefully help the girls to the states next year are Clara Karpovsky, Rachel Tarko, Nicole Kocher, Michelle Smookler, Jenny Krapivinsky, and Vanessa Torelli.

The boys, led by senior co-captains Seth Fetters and Adam Garbus, did not do as well as they had hoped, but there were some strong skiers in the group. Fetters and his freshman brother Zack consistently placed towards the top, and senior Ethan Wood also contributed points in the downhill races. Sophomore Mike Scherr will hopefully be back in the top slots next year to help the team to the states. Other skiers were junior Matt Tabas, Garbus, sophomores Mike Bardin, Eric Smookler, David Simons, Jared Wilk, and freshmen Nick Willett and Danny Greenstein.

In cross country, efforts from Garbus and Fetters paid off in placings. Junior Leo Goldmakher and sophomore Jacob Heim were strong skiers and placed points for South.

Although the team had a new coach for the second year in a row, it did not phase them. Tony Cammarata came in and worked with the team as best he could with the not-so-good conditions. Hopefully next year Cammarata will return to coach them again.

Fetters reflects on the season, "It was a fun experience and even though we didn't do as well as we had hoped, it was a good season to end on."

Zack looks on.

A Newton South Racer zooms to the finish line.

Captains Seth Fetters, Emily Bodner, Stephanie Whitehorn, and Adam Garbus.

Watch her race around the poles.

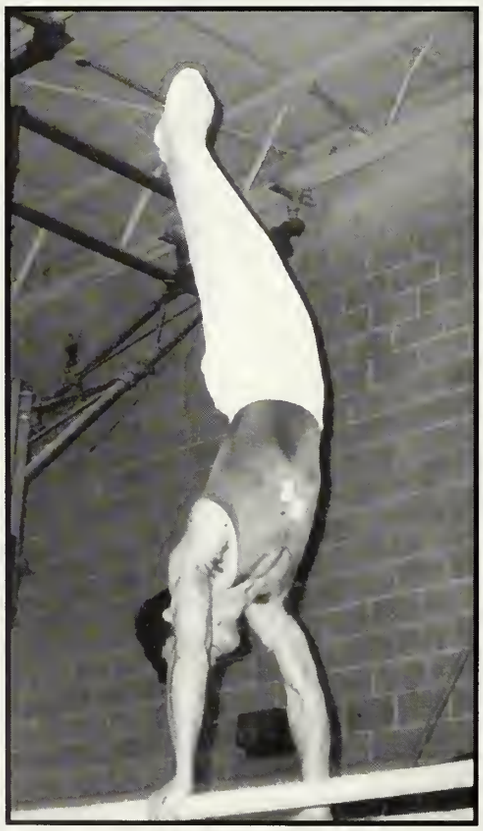
Looks like Sam and Jared won't be getting to the top of the mountain anytime soon.

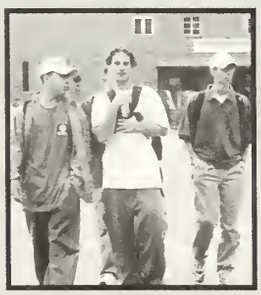
The boys play in the snow.

Ethan eats a power meal before racing.

"I bet you want some too."

Sports in Review





Underclassmen can be found hanging around the breezeway.

Without cars, freshmen and sophomores face all forces of nature to go out and have fun, bundled up, walking, walking, taking the T, and walking some more. Freshman year we were blessed with a class that had many older siblings, and many unbroken parties, free of police intervention. Sophomore year provided more fun, with some trying to enter into the foreign world of weekend acceptance. At the end of sophomore year the class felt more comfortable at Newton South.

Junior year meant cars, and nights aimlessly driving, looking for, yup, other cars, and a place to go. Then came the PSAT's and SAT's. Juniors are told their grades are of vital importance — college, college, college.

When we grow older there will not be a single one of us, even those who dislike our school, who won't be able to look back and remember at least some things fondly, and reflect back on their "glory days". These first three years started it all and I don't think we realized it at the time, but high school as a whole is something to be lived to the fullest. No regrets. It all began as freshmen . . .

"Hold on to sixteen as long as you can, change is coming around real soon, make us women and men."

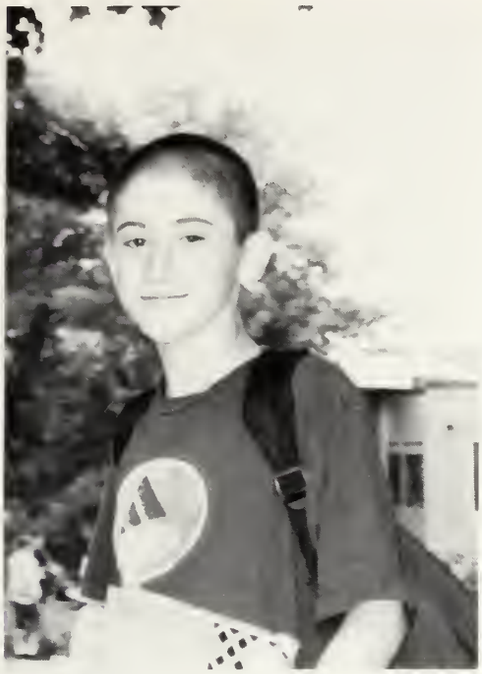
We didn't mean to bother you!



Someday I'll be as tall as my brother.

Life as a freshman is an endless struggle. There are three major tasks at hand freshman year. First, make friends with the upperclassman. Second, stay friends with other freshman. And a distant third, keep academics up with social achievement.

The first thing to accomplish freshman year is to find upperclassmen who don't get embarrassed when someone sees you talking to them. For some of the lucky freshman there is an older sibling or pre-existing friend that can help the cause. But for the majority of freshman it is an ordeal that is painful and tedious. By the end of the year you may have achieved nothing, but it gave you something to think about in study hall.

The second trial is to keep your freshman comrades together. In all the hustle and bustle of school work and trying to impress older students, it is easy to forget all the people that you had so much fun with the year before. For freshman with older siblings it is doubly hard: not only do you make older friends of your own, but you are almost forced to meet friends of your siblings. Having older friends is great, but eventually they will all graduate and you will have to return to friends your own age once again. Freshman year is the year to aspire to be a great senior someday, but between now and then you should not forget your closest friends, your peers.

The last obstacle to get over is the classroom. Even though most freshman want to start high school well, the same amount of effort exerted in eighth grade for an A is only enough to earn you a C at South. It is unfortunate for many that they have to find out the hard way that academics at South are hard and are a big step up from middle school.

Freshman year is when you are the butt of a lot of upperclassmen jokes. Like somebody great once said "What doesn't kill you makes you stronger". I agree. I am alive and even though there are two more years of being a hassled underclassman, this year has prepared me well.

We're too cool for this picture!

I'm here to pump you up!

As freshmen, we felt unwanted, irrelevant, and intimidated by upperclassmen. We learned the art of walking around the streets of Newton on thirty degree weekened nights. We could not forget the pre-weekend hopes of actually getting into a party. Most of all, our insignificance to the rest of the school remained in our minds at all times. Sophomore year, however, is a whole new ballgame — or so we thought.

Although we have driver's ed., we still don't drive, we still are not upperclassmen, and we still continually hike the cold streets of Newton in search of a party. The only difference is that Swerling is there to tease us about the complexities of having a license. However, we have dealt with these misfortunes for over a eyar, and we are no longer annoyed. We have learned to cope with our boredom, and have come together as a class.

Granted, there are groups of friends within the sophomore class, but most of these groups are compatible, which is a characteristic rarely found in a class. As the class of 2000 journeys through South, the members grow closer and learn to cope with the hardships of high school, and look forward to our years at the top.

We use Crest . . . with baking soda.

Yeah, I'm Ben Jonash!

As Freshman, we looked up to the Juniors with respect across our faces. Compared to us little frosh, they were old, big, and scary. Sophomore year was depressing because we got more attention as freshman! We realized that Junior year was only one year away, but we were still insignificantt underclassmen. Now were are here, we are those mature, intimidating people that they call Juniors. Driving into the Junior parking lot, we have a sense of belonging. Having earned authority, we walk down the halls of Newton South with our heads held high and proud.

This year we've taken on more adult responsibilities like getting our licenses, taking PSATs and SATs seriously, and working our butts off to get the grades for college. Listening to assemblies about colleges and our future choices, we are realizing that our time here at South is running out and still there's much to learn. Stressed out with lack of sleep, we now are forced to take school more seriously because it actually counts.

Even though we are busy, we still have the time for fun like participating in school activities and hanging out during the weekends. We counted down the days to the Powder Puff competition. The Semi-Formal has yet to come and we wait impatiently. Weekends are a time to kick back and enjoy our free time with friends.

Junior year is full of memorable "high-school" events and, through them, we grow closer. Looking back to our freshman and sophomores years, we see how much we've been forced to mature. We've been through a lot of rough times, this year especially, but we look forward to moving on to senior year together.

In Loving Memory of
Maxine Chansky

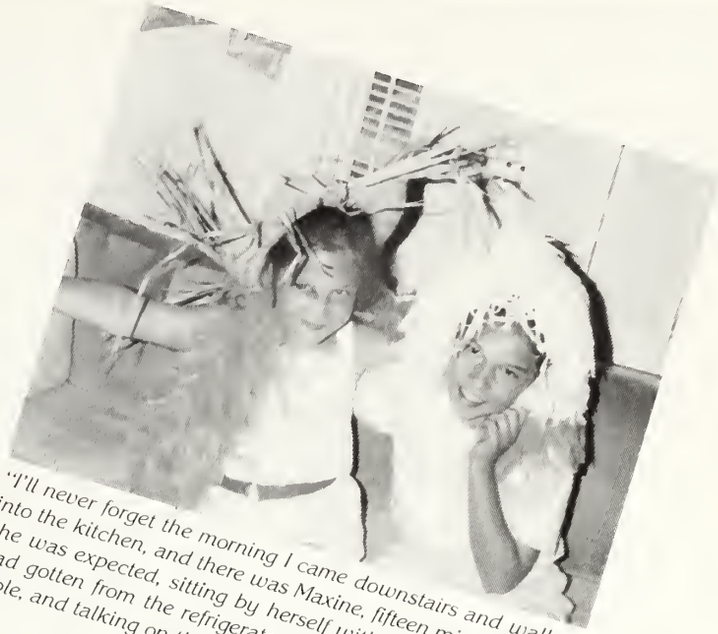
May 26, 1981 — August 13, 1997

July 28, 1996

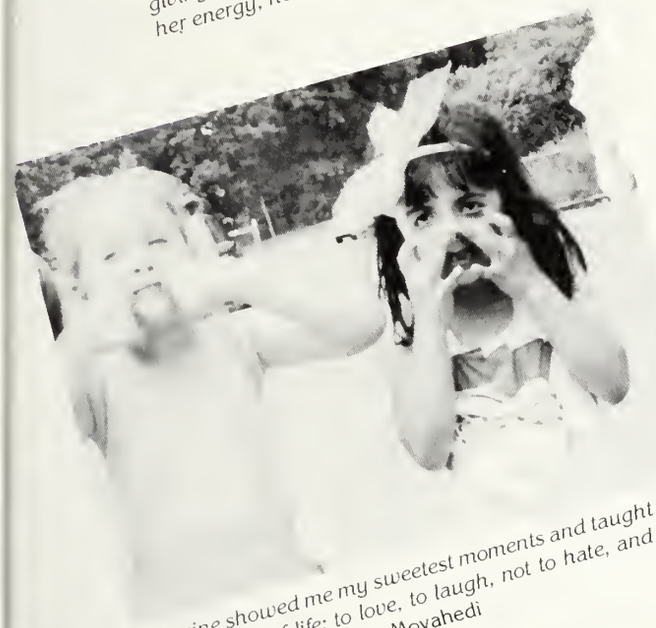
"It's hard to get by just upon a smile." — Cat Stevens

I think that is my biggest strength. I think I can get by with a smile. I think my smile is genuine and sweet. I don't think that it's if I'm pretty or ugly. What I've realized is a genuine smile uses the whole face, the whole body to express happiness. I do hope I can get by just upon a smile because I feel like it is important. And it's a whole attitude. A smile, the one I hope I have, is more than a smile. It is setting a mood. And a smile is the same in every culture, in every country. — Maxine Chansky

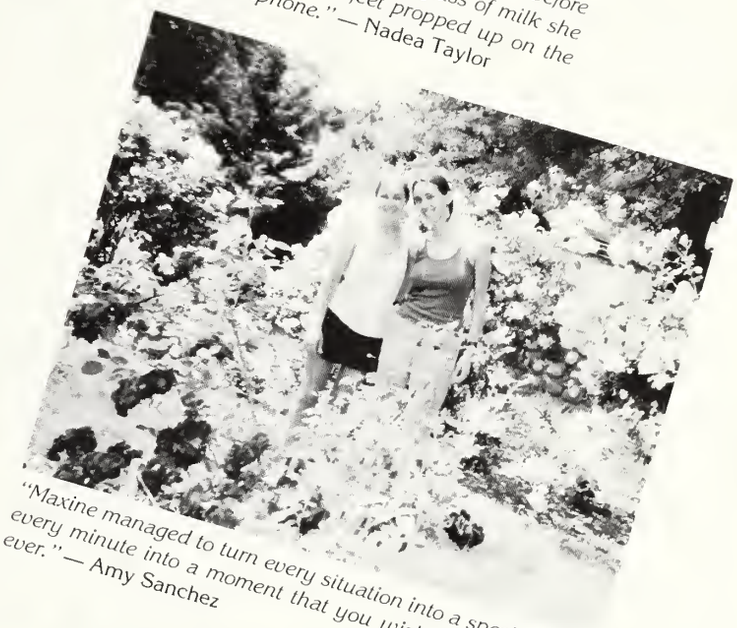
"Maxine was always true to herself, and for her that meant giving everything she had to everyone else — her creativity, her energy, her laugh." — Kathy Come



"I'll never forget the morning I came downstairs and walked into the kitchen, and there was Maxine, fifteen minutes before she was expected, sitting by herself with a glass of milk she had gotten from the refrigerator, her feet propped up on the table, and talking on the telephone." — Nadea Taylor



"Maxine showed me my sweetest moments and taught me the simple parts of life; to love, to laugh, not to hate, and how to tie my shoes." — Atossa Movahedi



"Maxine managed to turn every situation into a special event, every minute into a moment that you wished could last forever." — Amy Sanchez

"It was the way she danced from the inside out, free spirited, full of life, soul and energy. Maxine danced through life this way because she did everything with love and spirit and I loved watching her dance and live." — Heather Bowers

Seniors enjoy gathering in the parking lot during free blocks and after school. It is a time to relax and come together as a class.

BREAKING out WITH SENIORS

Senior Year

by Amy Sanchez

Digging our way out from under a pile of college applications and AP assignments, we can't help but wonder where the stereotype that senior year is finally a year for fun and relaxation comes from. Exhausted and burnt out by a junior year filled with rigorous course loads and SAT preparation, many seniors come back to school in the fall hoping to breeze through our last year of high school and to really enjoy our last chance to be kids. Instead, we find more tests, more work, and more responsibility.

Despite the initial shock from work, senior year definitely has its high points. After four years, the class finally begins to come together, and signs of senior bonding really do appear. From the senior class picture to the prom, the year is filled with activities created just for seniors. Whether it is the new sense of freedom, the thrill of finally being the oldest and most respected students in the school, or simply the fact that we are forced to spend all our seventy-minute free blocks huddled together in the senior lot, a sense of senior community begins to emerge. Realizing that this is the last year we have together, seniors look back at both the good and bad aspects of freshman, sophomore, and junior years with a certain nostalgia. Suddenly the friend that was getting on your nerves is the friend you want to spend as much time with as you can before graduation.

As a class, with our newfound wisdom, we enjoy the last few months of comfortable familiarity while preparing ourselves to branch out and discover new experiences by ourselves. Senior year is a time for reflection and a time for excitement. It seems like only yesterday we were the scared little freshmen, insignificant sophomores, or overstressed juniors. As we suddenly find ourselves in the roles of those big, scary people, we looked up to three years ago, supremely cool and filled with all of life's secrets (or so we like to think), we realize we have come a long way and are looking ahead into an exciting tomorrow.

"Would you like fries with that?"

"We like wool."

"Raffi, not too tight!"

"Nice gloves Seth!"

"A block classes kill me."

"Stop following me!"

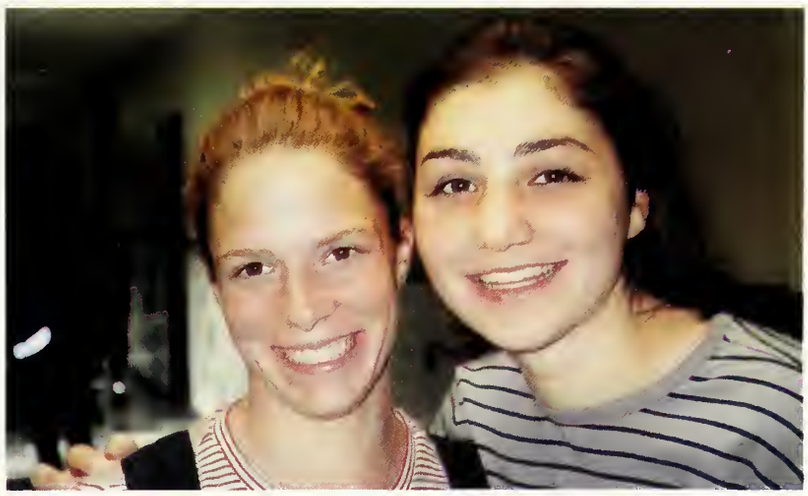
"Wow, Vihann's not running."

"What's got you so excited?"

"Leah matches a little too well."

"I grew this goatee sophomore year."

"We could rock a party."



"The Newton South goalies."

"Nathan, where's your bike?"

"We just dissected a frog."

"Carlo wears his yarmulke for temple."

"Tough guys wear their hats backwards."

"Billy and Emily share a moment in the parking lot."

"Who's the boss?"

"Shiny Happy People"

"Shaina and Ellie, friends forever."

"Who's the man?"

"Kiki is calling your name."

"The new library has something to please everyone."

"What are you looking at?"

"Hi, my name is Dan. Dan Polivy."

"Vladimir and his million dollar smile."

"Amanda, you are the wind beneath my wings."

"Maybe someday you can have a phat whip like me."

"Ali and Katherine like gummi bears."

"Nyiaa sleeps standing up."

"Super glue, it works!"

"If you wanna be tough, chew a stick."

"The library makes us happy."

"Where's Waldo?"

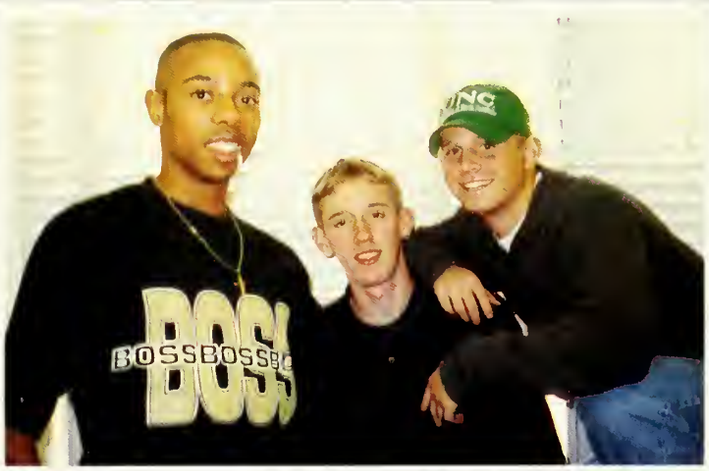
"Steve & Hamed plan their futures in the college resource room."

"Seniors? What are you doing in the cafe?"

Small, medium, and large.

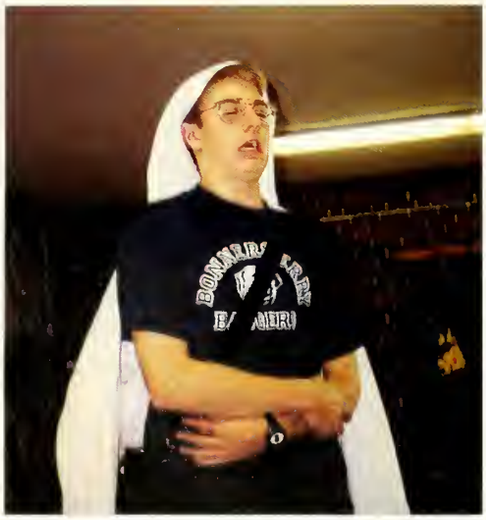
"Who is Akiva Fox?"

"Sarah, what's that under your thumb?"



"Jamie provides a shoulder to lean on."

"Amanda tells Solonje what she wants for Christmas."



"Dylan goes into labor."

"Wait, can I go to the bathroom?"

"Danna and Jonah snuggle in the parking lot."

"Can I take your order?"

"We don't go anywhere without our tunes."

"Dan, where are your glasses?"

"Run, Bryce, run!"

"Homeroom fun."

"Please don't take my picture."

Joanna and Carolina protect their lockers.

"Look, we brushed our teeth today!"

"Amanda loves her coffee and her friends."

"What's so funny?"

"Derek, why the long face?"

"Mara and Jessica represent Denebola."

"Aaron, what's with the hair?"

"Conor, you stud."

"Two's a couple, three's a crowd."

"Nathan attracts others with his magnetic personality."

"Braids make the man."

For resonant polysilicon microbridge vapor sensor: If there is a large amount of reverse diode leakage, the p-region can passivate prior to reaching the n-region. A proposed solution to this is the four terminal etch system. Maximum allowable diode leakage = 27.11 mA at 60 C, in 20% KOH @ 60C; exposed area — 40% of total area of 4" water (31.41 square cm).

Some feelings make you think of different colors. Jealousy is purple, I'm purple with rage or purple with anger, and green is envy. Like you explain your different emotions in color to this girl who has all the colors in the world. You can take it all to heart or throw it all away. You can call it just a lark or live your life that way. You can give until you're dry and sucked of all your gleam. Fake another cry and compromise your dream.

As of today, Massachusetts is no longer immune to the discreet charm of the domestic ferret. For 60 years, we've treated these creatures like outlaws, and while ferrets may wear masks that make them look like bandits, the consensus is they are, for the most part, law-abiding, litterbox using types. Search and seizure may make sense if there's a crocodile in the bathtub — but a ferret on the Barcalounger? That's what domestic bliss is, and any government that interrupts such benign happiness is going too far. — William Weld

They get us to fight each other, to hate each other. The game is everything. Win win win. It amounts to nothing. We kill ourselves, go crazy trying to beat each other, and all the time the old bastards are watching us, studying us, discovering our weak points, deciding whether we're good enough or not. Well, good enough for what?
We play by their rules long enough and it becomes our game.

We seldom realize who we are and we may never. We say words we wish we hadn't and it seems like the whole world comes falling down. We find that whom we fell in love with isn't whom we fell in love with. It's our actions that tell us who we are and they dictate how we live our lives. Omit needless words. This requires not that the writer makes all his sentences short, or that he avoid all detail and treat his subjects only in outline, but that every word tell. — Strunk, The Elements of Style He flung himself from the room, flung himself upon his horse and rode madly off in all directions. — Stephen Leacock To all who put a spring in my step over four years, I thank you for making the walk a little lighter!

You have a magic carpet
That will take you through the air,
To Spain or Maine or Africa
If you just tell it where.
So will you let it take you
Where you've never been before,
Or will you buy some drapes to match
And use it on your Floor?

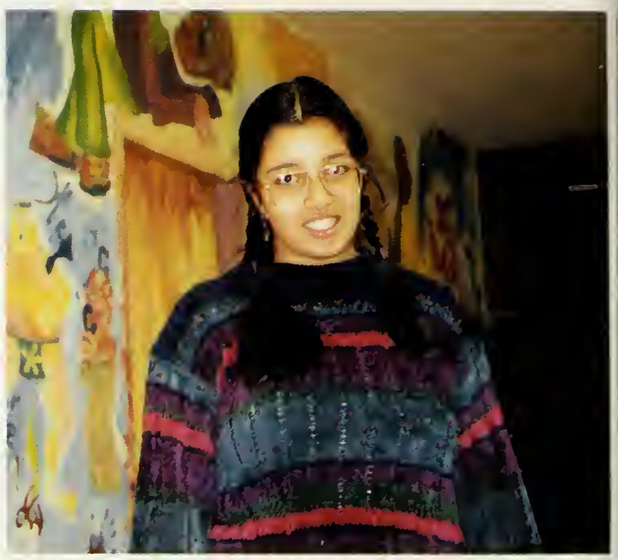
"Hey Roshanda, where's Rolanda?"



"I've got that pig tail thing goin' on."

"I brought my extra sweater in case it gets cold."

"Don't mess with Neda."

"Hillary and Sarah flash their pearly whites."

"Wow, I finally got a girl."

"It's all good!"

"Where's Stephany?"

"Jade, you could be a farmer in those clothes."

"Can't you see we're busy?"

"Andrew, you can't hide behind your friends forever."

"I really like this desk."

"Abby, did you get dressed in the dark?"

"David, do you ever change."

"Kristina, just come back from Lala Land."

"Lauren, where's Zach?"

"Merick, isn't this the senior section."

"Jess and her men."

"Where are we, Newton Center?"

"Look at my cute little lamb."

"DJB cuts it up."

"Hi, I'm Sara. My friends call me Sig B."

"Athena, button your shirt."

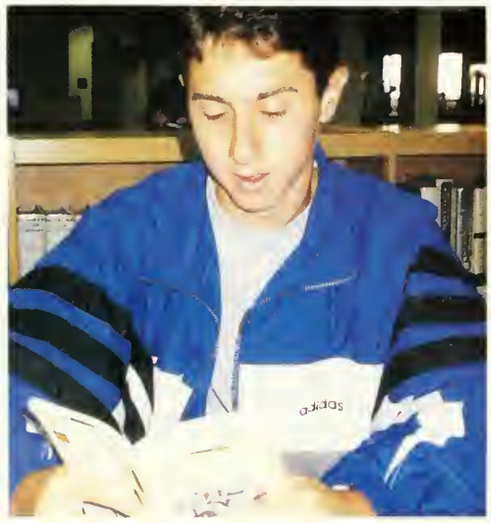
"Leah and a) Roshanda b) Rolanda c) none of the above"

"Lauren, wake up!"

"What's in the bag?"

"Leslie and Sarah feel safe near the fire extinguisher."

"Hamed gets ready to put the moves on."



"Josh can't tear himself away from Pride and Prejudice."

"Look I have a snowflake on my sweater."

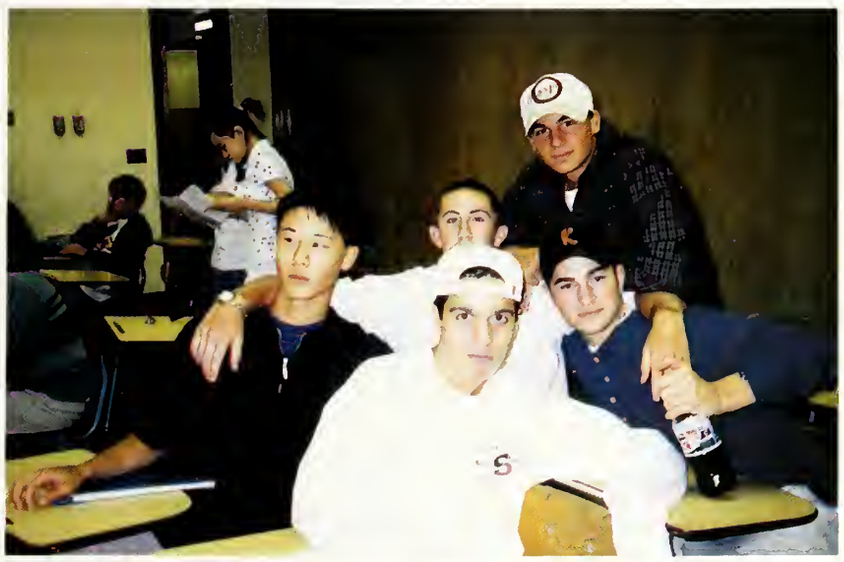
"Hi, I'm Nat. But you can call me Mr. Slick."

"What's new, Jay strikes out."

"Come close, I dare ya."

"Rachel and Kimbal like Wheeler Commons."

"What's under the hat?"



"Don't smile too big guys."

"Let's not get too close."

"Let us in on the secret."

"When was the last you saw each other, yesterday?"

"Who are you winking at?"

"Amanda, I said NO!"

"You studs."

"Emily steals back to Walgreens."

"Cheese."

"My best friend, the pole."

"Why didn't they pick on someone their own size?"

"Look at the cute couples"

"Jumping for joy."

"Ramon, what happened to your hand?"

"Paula and Sheeba wait for the bell to ring."

"What are you reaching for?"

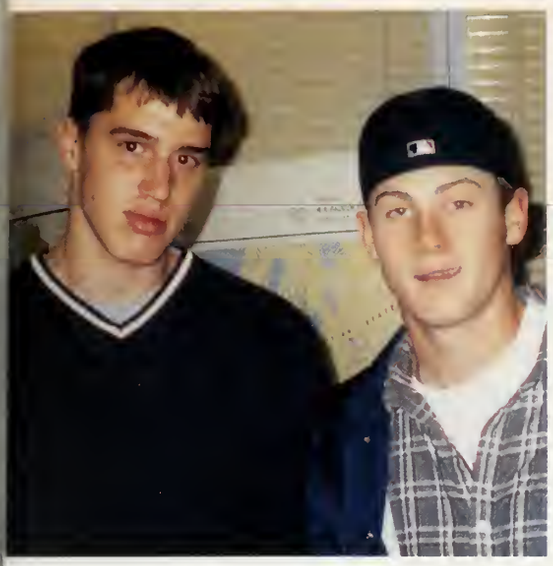
"Whatcha lookin' at?"

"Anna, Denise, and Leah spend a free block in the lot."

"Yuval's mom stops in for a visit."

"Athena and Chloe settle in for a class meeting."

"Hi."



"We're the Bowen studs."

"Sophie, what's wrong?"

"What's the math problem of the week?"

"Jackie and Leslie admire the lockers."

"Bryana and Kim wait for class to start."

"Kenny's adam's apple pokes Danna's eye out."

Barabara Wise: Thank you so much for your guidance and support. Your commitment to Regulus has played an essential role in its production.

Frances Moyer: Thanks for accompanying us to yearbook camp and for sharing homeroom with us. Your help and dedication has made this experience truly worthwhile.

Love,
Danna, Sara and Athena

We would like to thank everyone who made Regulus '98 possible:

John Carrier: Thank you for putting up with our late night calls and last minute questions. Your guidance has helped us to create this yearbook. And we know . . . we still owe you a coke!

NESP and Herff Jones: We appreciate your hard work in putting together this yearbook.

FOJO Photo Delivery: Thanks for sending our pictures back ASAP every time.

The Brown Family: Thank you so much for opening up your house to the yearbook staff. Your basement is our second home . . . and we really will clean it up! We are grateful for the pounds of twizzlers and jolly ranchers that helped us make it through. We promise to come back and visit often!

Hagit Ben-Akiva: Thanks for supporting us and for dealing with Danna's crazy schedule.

The Liu Family: Thanks for understanding Athena's late night arrivals and early morning departures.

Kim,

We are very proud of the kind and loving person you always have been and are.

We love you and will miss you so much!! Love, Mom, Dad and Jon

SHERI- From study hall to the gatherings at my house, we found out the meaning of true friends I'll never forget Aruba, it was more than a vacation, it was a learning experience. Our friendship was put through a test and of course we survived Remember getting ready for dinner There were twice as many stars in the sky that night If anyone ever bothers you, just remember, GERRR! If that doesn't work, I'll always be there.
CHEZIE- You have always been a good friend to me I hope I have done the same. I don't ever want to see you crying again. Your smile is too beautiful to hide, you hear me? I still can't believe that you "just wanted to sit down?" You scared us and it took a lot of effort to sprint up those stairs We'll definately stay in touch, whether I'm in Hawaii or at Amherst with you. Stay away from mirrors.
NICOLE- You've disturbed many peoples lives by flaunting your butt in their faces Your dance lessons were very amusing You totally deserved getting drenched at the car wash And the water war was awesome How old are we? Stay crazy no matter what anyone says Never hold in your thoughts (not that you ever do) You'll always be thought of as the "wild one"
"325es, 143 all so much, and I'll never forget these past four years Keep in touch."

COLL-I'm so sorry about the fights My bad. We've been thru so much thru the year Let's stay BFF No need to fight I'll always B there 4 U even if U don't believe me Sitting outside of IHOP and picking up guys-they're all a holes Every weekend,"we're bored!" We always found ways to entertain outselves I'll miss U so much I Luv U
NICOLE-Hmmm That's how it all started I'll miss U when you're in Canada and I'm in Hawaii Spring break, come and visit You'll always be crazy So when U getting your license? It doesn't matter We'll always drive All we've been thru I'll always B there when U need me. I luv U
SOPHS-Wazup B*? NSFH '97-GRRR!!! U were the best Remember the times at your house Your pina colada's were the best The cooka's still in my room ARUBA! Remember the beach Mr Reed's math class
"So what car?" "A BMW?" I can't believe U, But U deserve it all. I'll always B there for U where ever U R-HAWAII- I'll be there. I luv you so much
To all the gals-I luv you all so much and will miss you all. Come visit me in Hawaii during spring break Keep in touch!
4,
SHER

NICOLE-I'll always remember you crazy sense of humorand hyperness You alwaly make me smile. From Vuruca to Uruco (Land of Fantasyor El Testico) You're the best Keep on shaggin' baby I love you We'll always be friends
SHER- What can I say, you're my best friend In spite of all the other sh. We've been through it all A-holes(a bunch), fights(a few) and guys(Rob). BFF-I love you
Soph- I wouldn't have made it with out all your advice, (you're never wrong), and encouragement I will never forget all the nights at your house, annerversary and easter parties- heads thru the sunroof at 80mph. Keep driving (and living) as only you can. 1444443!!!
My girls- I can't believe it's almost over You are what I'll miss most Thanx for being such good friends I love you all!

Dear Emily,

Draw a crazy picture, write a nutty poem, sing a mumble-jumble song, whistle through your comb. Do a loony-goony dance 'cross the kitchen floor, put something silly in the world that ain't been there before.

Congratulations. We are so proud of you. You have brought so much joy and fun and laughter into our lives.

Love Mom, Dad and Cynthia

Ritochca,

We love you so much, we feel special having you, even though it's not easy sometimes. You are a great person with a kind heart. You have good friends (Daisy loves it when they come over). We wish you'll have an interesting life with a lot of traveling, as you want. Unfortunately you have to study hard for that. Always smile and be happy,

Love Mom, and Dad

Jake — graduating is "old hat" to you!

Our dearest Bryana,

We are so proud of your hard work and accomplishments, but most of all, the loving, honest and sensitive woman you've become. Now it's time to share you with the rest of the world. We are sure it will be a better place for the path that you have taken. Keep following your dreams and they will come true. You are the greatest joy that any family could ever hope to have. We love you very much.

Mom and Dad

Dear Bry,

Congratulations! You have always been a great "sissy," and role model. My only advice is always be yourself, and the rest will fall into place. I love you very much!

Your children are not your children.
They are the sons and daughters of life's
Longing for itself
They come through you but not from you,
And though they are with you, yet they belong not to you.
You may give them your Love, but
Not your thoughts.
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies, but not
Their souls,
For their souls dwell in the House of
Tomorrow, which you cannot visit, Not
Even in your dreams.
You may strive to be like them, but seek not
To make them like you.
For life goes not backward nor tarries
With yesterday.
You are the bows from which your children
As living arrows are sent forth
The archer sees the mark upon the path of
The infinite, and he bends you with his might
That his arrows may go swift and far
Let your bending in the archers hand before gladness;
For even as he loves the arrow that flies, so
He loves also the bow that is stable.
— Gibran

Dear Casandra —
We deeply love you.

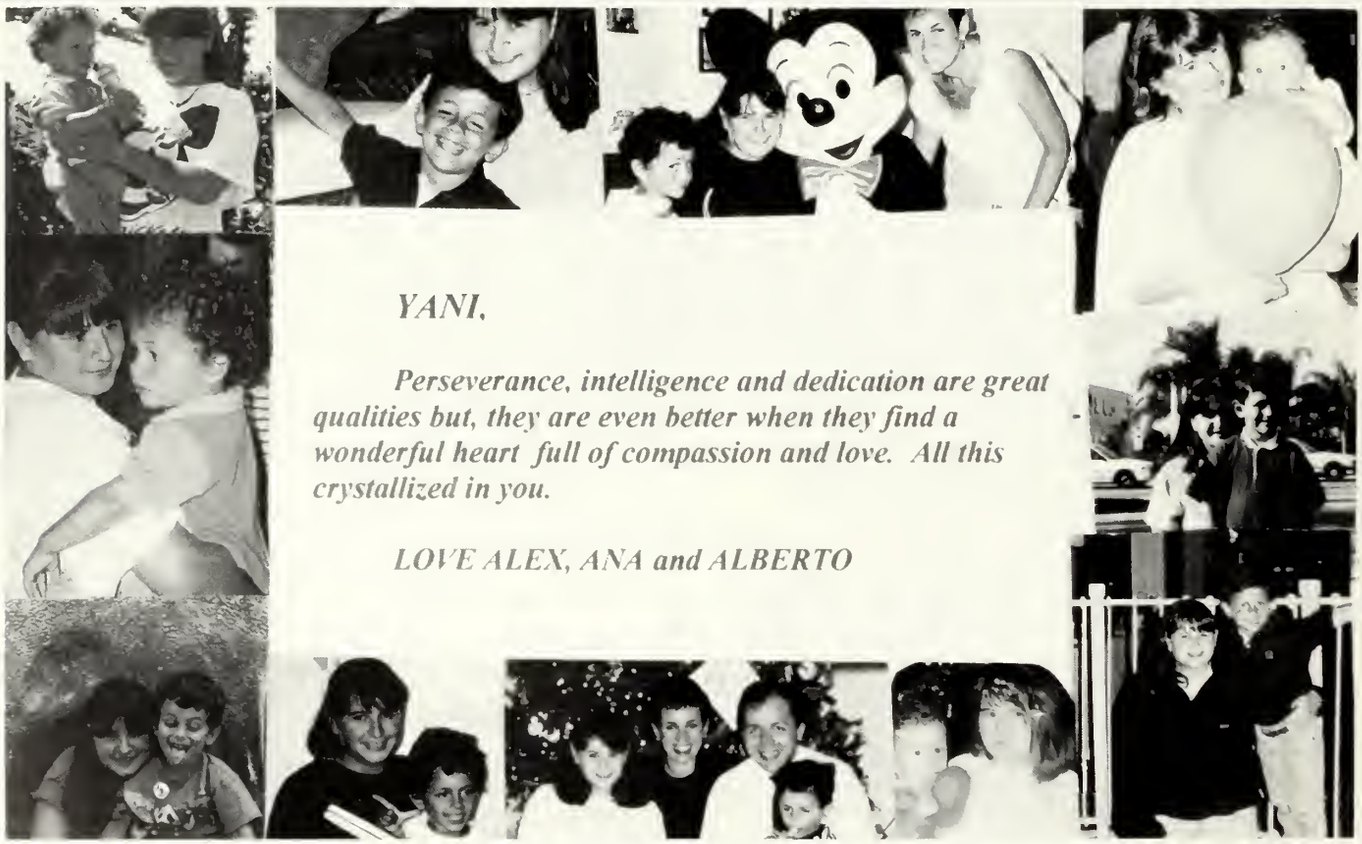
The Guys of '98--
It's been great watching you grow...
Congratulations and good luck!

To Yana,

Congratulations to our wonderful daughter and the greatest sister. May your wishes, desires and dreams all come true. For all that you are and for all you will be, we love you forever*

From Drogobetsky Family



YANI,

Perseverance, intelligence and dedication are great qualities but, they are even better when they find a wonderful heart full of compassion and love. All this crystallized in you.

LOVE ALEX, ANA and ALBERTO

Juden,

The journey has been too quick — watching you grow from an adorable baby to a fine young man that I can proudly call my son. As you stand on the threshold of new beginnings . . . Remember . . .
Life is a game, play it!
Life is a challenge, meet it!
Life is a dream, realize it!
Life is love, enjoy it!
With blessings and love you will always be my very special person.

Mum.

Patricia,
Todos tus anos en Newton South High School han sido solo triunfos y orgullo para nosotros mucha suerte en tu futuro. Siempre te apoyaremos.

Steph,
You were: never easy — forever challenging — always fulfilling. With your drive, talent and determination, everything is possible. We're so proud of the person you've become.

All our love, Mom and Dad

Dan,
May your life be filled with as much joy and love as you have given to us.
We're very proud of you . . . Congratulations to you and the class of 1998!
All our love, Mom, Dad, Adam, Emily, and Elana

Emily,
As you blaze your own trail, may you reach higher peaks and higher peaks,
With much love and pride,
Mom, Dad, Danny, and Adam

Russ,
Keep smiling as you go out into the world. May all your dreams be fulfilled.
We love you —
Mom, Dad and Jeremy

Rachel Ann,
We've loved every minute of watching you grow,
From a lively baby girl
To a cheerleading pro.

You've always been special in so many ways
Your warmth and enthusiasm have shone in each phase.

A terrific big sister to Sarah, who will soon have her own phone,
You're off on a new adventure
All on your own!

Remember to trust in who you are,
For you have become all that we had ever hoped for —
By far.

All our love,
Mom, Dad, and Sarah

Amanda,
We are truly blessed to have you as our daughter. You are a strong, independent person, filled with generosity, love and convictions. You have accomplished so much and your potential is boundless. We wish you continued happiness and success in all of your endeavors. No matter what you do and where you go, you will always have our love and support.

We are so very proud of you,
Today and Always.

Danna,
Congratulations on being the last Ben-Akiva to graduate from Newton South. The three of us have grown to be as close as three siblings could ever be. We couldn't imagine our lives without you. Who would we have had there to get in trouble with when we were younger? Who would we go shopping with, see movies with, and have visit us now? You! You will always be our little sister no matter how old we get. We know you will go far in life and wherever you do go, we will always be there for you. What would one of us be without the others? Incomplete? You're the best and we love you.
Love,
Ori and Lea

P.S. — Li-Li wants Chi-Chi.

Danny — You are so special and always will be. We are so very proud of you on this special day.

Robin, Nate, Heidi and Erica Birnbaum

Dear David,

May you forever be wide-eyed with wonder and always take time to smell the flowers.

With all our love,

Mom, Dad, Michael, and Christina

Le-Le my pumpkin,
I'm so proud of you and very blessed, and so grateful to be your Mommy Dearest. Always do the best you can in your life. Best simply means try. God has been good to you for 18 yrs. Keep in mind to be good to God in the name of love. God is love. I love you!

Mommy dearest.

Sista,
Keep up the good work. Don't let jealously and envy get in your way. It's you and I forever sista. Continue to stay strong. Love your sista,

Kia

Leah you are a very inspiring young lady, follow your dreams, stay with God.

Love Pam

Who loves you baby. Keep up the good work squirrel,

Love Daddy

Love you Auntie — Little Jerry
Leah, May God bless you, this verse Philippians 4:13. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Love Ma,

Danna,

Where have the years gone since Danna was born?
She captured my heart on that very first morn.

Where have the years gone since Danna was five?
She still has the smile that makes me alive.

Where have the years gone since Danna was ten?
A talker now, a chatterbox then.

Where have the years gone since she was fifteen?
A phantom daughter who was rarely seen.

Where have the years gone? I really can't say.
But I love Dannushka more with each passing day.

Congratulations to you and the class of 1998.
I'm so proud of you. Love,
Abba

Ethan,
From the start you have always displayed the character, courage and charisma of a true champion. You are a winner! WE ARE SO PROUD OF YOU!

With all our love
Mom, John, Lissy and Atticus

Dear Katherine,
Keep reaching for the stars..... you can do it! Congratulations! We are very proud of you.
Love,
Mom, Dad, Suzy, Tommy

Dear Adi,
Over the years, you have changed and grown into a young woman. We wish you luck, happiness and success wherever your heart may lead. Don't forget not to just flow with the river. If you can, find your own little stream that will take you to your dreams. Let your desire be your destiny.
"TIME DOES NOT PASS, WE DO"
("Lorado")

Mom, Dad, Amir, Ami, Blondy
and all of your friends
around the world.

Dear Jen —
"Do not follow where the path may lead.
Go instead where there is no path ..... and leave a trail"
May you always find joy down your own road. We are so proud of your independent spirit.
Love,
Mom, Dad, and Steven
